River in Name
With the Kentucky dam, near Paducah, Ky., completed, the Tennessee river will become a river only in name. Actually it will be a series of lakes created by the many dams of the Tennessee Valley Authority. Only the 23 miles between Kentucky dam and the Ohio river will remain a "river."

Kentucky dam waters will back up to five-year-old Pickwick dam, and reach almost across two states to southwestern Tennessee. From the Pickwick dam to Knoxville successive dams make an eighteen staircase of lakes. The headwaters of each lake lap at the base of the succeeding dam, forming a continuous nine-foot-deep navigation channel.

Fort Loudoun dam, latest completed, pushed the waters back to Knoxville. This Tennessee city, far inland at the base of the highest mountains in eastern United States, 650 water miles from Paducah, and more than 1,600 miles from the mouth of the Mississippi, will become a sea outlet.

Look of Luxury
Many home planners have discovered that rooms with the "look of luxury" are best achieved through well-chosen plain-colored background walls and ceilings, and furnishing that "play up" the background colors. For instance, soft, restful green walls and ivory ceiling are made doubly attractive when accented by a braided rug of olive green. Ivory leather davenport and easy chairs, coily grouped around the fireplace, make a perfect match with the ceiling. Curtains, chairs, foot-stools and other touches in the room, either of rust or maroon, provide necessary warmth. A mirrored coffee table and end tables as well as a decorative mirror above the fireplace reflect the luxurious-looking but simply designed living room.

Ladybugs Fight Pests
Ladybugs have gone to war! Four million strong, they are marching through California's citrus groves—staging a counter-attack against the fruit crop's deadly enemies, the "Citrophilus" and other mealybugs.

These small black ladybugs, or ladybird beetles, with reddish markings, are scarcely more than an eighth of an inch long, but 10 adult ladybugs and their offspring can clean a mealybug-infested tree in a few months, says the National Geographic society.

Originally brought from Australia in 1822 to combat the citrus fruit pest, then spreading throughout California's groves, the ladybug Cryptolus, a small colorful beetle, has since been produced by the millions in numerous California insectaries.

Acid Soil
In apple orchards where large quantities of sulphur are being used, without lime, the soil becomes so acid that the growth of ordinary grasses and weeds is greatly reduced.

Mountainous Borders
Like her Swiss and German (Austrian) borders, Italy's French boundary runs along high mountain tops. Mont Blanc, 15,782 feet, highest of the Alps, straddles the international line. From there south to the sea the Gratin Alps, Cottian Alps and Maritime Alps hinder transportation today almost as effectively as they did in Roman and Napoleonic times.

Pork Barrels
Oak barrels or large stone jars are the most satisfactory for curing pork, say swine specialists. A clean container is absolutely essential for successful meat curing. It should always be washed out and thoroughly sterilized before using.
