LANTERNS ON THE LEVEE—
William Alexander Percy. These recollections bridge the interval between the gallant, semi-federal South of fifty years ago and the changing mood of the present, but often cruder South of today. The background is the Mississippi Delta, and behind Percy was the memory of the most gracious civilization America has produced. Born and reared within the shelter of old traditions, aristocratic in the best sense, he was brought face to face with the convulsions of a changing world. The rare quality of his memories lies not in what he did, although his life was exciting and varied, but in the intimate, honest, and soul-probing record of how he brought himself to comprehend the new unstable world unflinchingly.

Here are rich memories of a childhood when cotton was still king and the arrival of the river steamboat an event; of Yankee Boston as seen by a Harvard law student; of politics when his father served as United States Senator from Mississippi and fought the "Carnegie" machine with an intensity of passion known only in the South; of war when he served with Hoover in Belgium and the A.E.F. in France; of the fight against the Ku Klux Klan in Greenville, and of the great flood of 1927. In the intervals he traveled widely, met all kinds of people, published four books of poetry, and finally settled down to run a model plantation and to watch the world march steadily toward war.

This man who craved peace was a fighter all his life. But it is his war story that is really moving, the story of a sensitive, upright, and cultured man, of his gradual reorientation and of his quest for a way of life that he could call good.

EISENHOWER—Man and Soldier — Francis Trevelyan Miller. One hundred years ago the Eisenhower family came to the New World to find freedom from oppression in the Old World — today General Dwight Eisenhower leads the armies of the Allies against the Axis Stronghold in Europe to bring freedom to the lands which his family fled. His is a stirring story, because it is the story of a typical American boy from a typical American town. It is the story of developing leadership and military genius which comes to the front in no other country so much as in America. It is the story of the Eisenhower family and background which helped "Iron Ike" to be one of the most powerful generals in all the history of civilization.

Doctor Miller, author of fifty other volumes, and noted historian, worked for months on this authoritative biography. His research took him into many states, Texas, Virginia, Kansas and Pennsylvania, from the introduction to this definitive biography.

Mrs. Lewis Graham was ill with a heavy cold over the week-end. Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hoogland and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fredericks, formerly of West Point Park but now residing in Florida, have been relieved to learn that these good people suffered neither personal nor property damage during the recent hurricane. Although in the path of the storm it seemed to veer slightly before reaching them.

The Schick test and others were administered to pupils in Pierson School this last week. Dr. Hotchkiss was the physician in charge. Tuesday's voting was, as usual, held in the PTA Hall, but it is understood that the hall, which was the original "little old school-house" in this school district, is now to be used as a garage for the school bus.

The Boy Scouts have sold out their supply of Christmas cards and are now busy selling magazines. They are planning a camp-out on a weekend early in December. The Intermediate Girl Scouts met with Mrs. William Barnum at her home near Eight Mile and Grand River Saturday afternoon. Since the transportation problems make it difficult for Mrs. Barnum to keep in touch with the girls, most of whom live within walking distance of the Pierson School, she is giving up her work as their leader and this was her last meeting with them. She served a hearty lunch and all had a happy time together, though expressing many regrets.

Mrs. Ostrander is near the Intermediate Girl Scout leader. Relatives and intimate friends of Mrs. Jack Oman gathered at her home last Wednesday evening and showered her with numerous, beautiful gifts anticipating a blessed event next month. By way of entertainment games were played and appropriate prizes given but there was also much happy "visiting." At the close of the evening, Mrs. Oman's mother, Mrs. Austin Ault, served a tasty lunch.

Arnold Lewis Jennings, the late little son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Jennings, Norfolk Ave., was tendered his Sunshine gift, consisting of yellow rompers with socks to match, at the last meeting of the Sunshine Sisters held Wednesday afternoon in the Neighborhood Church. In addition to the presentation the usual program was carried out and business matters taken care of. A lunch of ginger bread, fancy cookies and animal crackers, accompanied by tea and coffee, was served.

The Thanksgiving party of the Sunshine Sisters will be held in the Neighborhood Church on Wednesday, Nov. 22nd, at 2:30 p.m. Women of the community, regardless of age and creed, will all be made welcome.

The Neighborhood Bible School will hold its Thanksgiving service at 11 a.m. Sunday, Nov. 26. Parents and friends are requested to be present. The Thanksgiving sermon in the Neighborhood Church will be preached by Rev. Axel Edwards next Sunday evening, Nov. 19th, at 6 o'clock.

The Prayer-Bible-Study group met at the home of Mrs. Walter Rehahn last Thursday and enjoyed a happy, interesting evening of song, prayer study and discussion. Next Thursday evening they meet for a special hymn sing in the Neighborhood Church.
