Management And Labor

In the near future a more friendly relationship between management and labor is sure to replace the old hostility. A little understanding will go far in forming this friendly feeling.

Most men don't want to be the boss. That's as true as sunlight, but most bosses do not comprehend it because by temperament they are themselves ambitious. The fact is that their employees are quite content to leave management alone.

Foremen and superintendents could do a lot to improve employer-employee relationships if they would only realize that workers are human and subject to the vanities of mankind. American workers in particular want to be treated as free and rational individuals. They want clear instructions from the boss, and then they want to be trusted to get out the work without repeated inquiries as to how they're doing it.

They want to feel secure in their jobs. If they are going to be laid off or asked to work overtime, it is only fair that they should be given advance notice so that other plans may not be disrupted.

Employers who do not understand these simple facts are trying to live in a day that is past. In these days the man who meets the payroll cannot issue orders to his employees like a general to his army. Freedom and independence have been taught so well in America that no man will serve a feudal lord.

Management can go a long way toward establishing friendly relationship with labor by mastering a few simple rules of human psychology.

The Trends Of War

This war is the most destructive in the history of the world but it has its constructive side. The millions of our men who are in the services are "seeing the world" and when the survivors return, they will have an outlook, perspective, and philosophy that will be new.

What new trend their knowledge and thought will introduce no one can say for sure but we can guess. For the first time in their lives, or at least in the majority of instances, these young men have been eating the best food, wearing quality clothes, observing regular hours, accepting discipline, and associating with men of unusual background and education.

It seems likely that they will acquire habits and standards that will be retained. They will want better living quarters, clothes, food, household goods, automobiles, and other things that contribute to an attractive life.

Many have acquired education and skill from schools and training courses which will fit them for better jobs than they had before. Many will become first-class executives, accustomed to handling large groups of men, able to assume far more responsible duties than they had when they left home.

Never before has there been such a migration around the globe. American men and women have not only seen America but they have traveled the seven seas and know more about geography than those of us at home ever will know.

It seems certain, therefore, that enormous change will follow the peace. And it also seems certain that many of these changes will be for the better.

The size of the fur seal herd on the Pribilof Islands has been so increased through careful conservation measures under direct government management that it is now larger than it has been in 75 years. The annual census of the seals, completed in August, showed that the herd consisted of 2,945,683 animals. The capital value of this famous herd is estimated at well over $100,000,000. The fur seal herd numbered possibly 4,000,000 animals at the time the United States purchased Alaska, a purchase which included the Pribilof Islands, from Russia in 1867. In the following two years various independent and uncontrolled groups killed approximately 328,000 seals. For a period of 40 years, from 1870 to 1910, the right to take fur seal skins on the islands was leased by the U. S. government to private corporations. Under the first 20-year lease the annual take was frequently in excess of 100,000 skins, a total of 1,977,377 skins during the life of the lease. Under the second 20-year lease the total take was 342,551 skins.

BITS OF THIS AND THAT

By ELMER T. POCKLINGTON.

WINTER WEATHER

"When the days begin to lengthen

Then the cold begins to strengthen."

I have heard that adage

warbled since my youth,

Though it isn't very cheerful,

It's a jingly little earful

And I've learned to know

It tells the honest truth.

But it will not last forever—

I mean this conundrum weather;

Soon the bluebird and

the robin both will sing;

Soon the violets and roses

and a dozen other poises

Will announce the advent of another spring.

I'm not longing for tomorrow

With its joy or with its sorrow—

I will try to live the days

just as they pass.

Though the weather's warm or colder

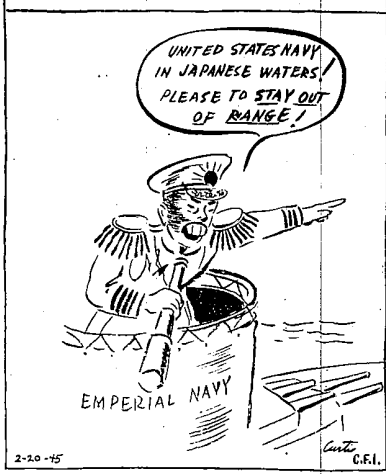

Each day makes me that much older

And there's only "out"

so much said in the glass.

ADVANCE TO THE REAR

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

New High School Auditorium
Farmington

"Mind" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, February 25.

The Golden Text (Job 32:8) is: "There is a spirit in man: and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Romans 12:2): "And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (169): "With one Father, even God, the whole family of man will be brethren; and with one Mind and that God, or good, the brotherhood of man would consist of Love and Truth, and have unity of Principle and spiritual power, which constitute Divine Science."

Looking Back Through The Enterprise Files

TEN YEARS AGO (March 7, 1935)

Plan New Business Places

Two important changes and improvements in Farmington's business section are planned for the immediate future. A new, modern retail grocery store and meat market will occupy the former Farmington Dairy building next to Peoples State Bank on Grand River Avenue. Delos Hamlin has purchased the property from the receivership of Peoples State Bank, and will begin soon to completely remodel the building. A second improvement report is scheduled for the expansion and modernization of the gasoline station on Farmington Road just north of the Enterprise building.

Plan New Street Near Junction

Building of a new 60 ft. gravel road from Grand River north to Shiloh Street is assured, following action taken by the City Commission at their monthly meeting. The proposal, made by Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic parish, provides for the new street to be laid along the eastern boundary of its property.

School Band Will Escort Governor

Farmington will not be without representation at the Detroit and Michigan Exposition which will open Saturday noon at Convention Hall in Detroit. The band will have the coveted and sought for assignment of playing on Tuesday, which is Governor's Day. Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald and the Michigan Legislature will arrive in a body. They will arrive by train and will be escorted from the depot to Convention Hall by the Farmington Band.

FIVE YEARS AGO (February 22, 1940)

Officials Prepare For Campaigns

The Republican and Democratic parties in Farmington Township are ready to start campaigning for the annual election April 1. State were filled Monday at the primaries, with one of the lowest votes in many years recorded. Harry McCracken won easily over his rival, Walter Headlee, in the race for the clerk nomination, and in a three-way contest for Justice of the Peace, Ernest Blanchard, incumbent, won easily over his rivals, Ovilva Godin and Harry Christinas.

Teams Prepare For Tournament

Farmington High School basketball team is preparing this week to enter the district cage tournament to be held Thursday, February 23, and Friday and Saturday, March 1 and 2, in the Walled Lake High School gymnasium. Farmington's first opponent will be Ponton High School.

Clarenceville Voters Veto Land Purchase

The taxpayers in Clarenceville School District voted down a proposition to buy additional land for the school by a vote of 229 to 45 Friday night. The land was to be used at present for an athletic field and as a site for a future high school building.

ly short on adequate, modern facilities to accommodate city-wide tourists.

The blue-sky, so-called, has served to keep up the faith and courage of its natives and to attract curious travelers into its domain. Yet good housing and good restaurants are few and far between, and many travel-experienced citizens will concede. In competition with other play areas this country has suffered much. It will continue to suffer until its resort-keepers or perhaps the state government introduce adequate facilities for the traveler's comfort.

In spite of this handicap, the Upper Peninsula has managed to forge ahead. Everyone who visits this "tough country," air-conditioned "Swiss" resorts, midway between the Great Lakes, will readily admit that the region possesses a promising future as well as an enriched present and a glorious, crimson past.

"If we had known then what we know now, Blaney Park might never have been undertaken," said G. Harold Earle, president of the Wisconsin Land and Lumber Company, a Michigan corporation which owns and operates the Blaney Park resort, midway between St. Ignace and Escanaba on U.S.

"In 1927 when my brother (Stewart E.) and I began Blaney Park, we were just ten to twenty years too soon. Consider the history of Blaney for a minute, and you'll get an idea of what I mean."

"In 1873 my grandfather, Charles J. Meyer induced the Chicago & Northwestern railroad to lay (Continued on Page Seven)

"Tough country." That's the Upper Peninsula which stretches from Ironwood to Sault Ste. Marie and south to Menominee, according to one contemporary writer.

Here is a region, long on blue-sky lure, the immodest child of George Bishop's Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, but decided-
