Michigan Mirror

Michigan citizens may be justly proud.
While strikes will always make dramatic news for newspapers, and while the stay-on-the-job workers will not get the public's attention, the labor strike isn't the basic problem in Michigan today.
Selective Service is taking more war workers into the armed forces.
The war production board is asking more and more production of tanks, cannons, shells and thousands of other war items.
The result: Fewer workers must produce more! That's the chalenge.
Can this production be effected if labor continues to insist on the elimination of wasteful restrictions on production? The army, navy and war production board leaders express doubt. Lack of labor responsibility is partly due to the newness of the labor movement in Michigan and to the fact that it also is due to failure on the part of the worker to see the inevitability of control by the government—regulations for accounting of funds, democratic elections, observance of contracts, end of high dues and other membership demands. Another union membership, jurisdictional strikes and secondary boycotts — if the worker does not put labor's house in order.
Management has a challenge also.
Conceding the worker's fear of the machine, Eric Johnson, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, recently said:
"One of the main causes for work-slow-up is the fear that when the job is finished there may be nothing but unemployment ahead. The prospect of continuous employment, the extension of legitimate social security, every sane and sensible scheme for unemployment insurance — these will help eliminate the 'feather-bedding' that eliminates the 'hard-headed' man in the main run parallel to the faults of business. The tendency to reap out for power, to take all the traffic will bear in a given situation, to forget public interest, to overlook the long view in favor of immediate profit — which of these has not been charged against labor and capital alike, and with about equal justice."
Just as the little man has revolted against capital's concentration of economic power, a by-product of our machine age, so the little man may revolt against labor's abuse and misuse of its new economic power. Unjust and punitive anti-labor laws may be the outcome. If government is to be retained as a referee, not glorified to be both judge and jury, labor and management have a responsibility to conduct their own affairs on a basis of mutual respect and consideration. Self-interest then becomes public interest.
That's the "low-down" as we see it.

FROZEN METALS

Heat has been used since ancient times in the hardening of metals; the cold treatment is new. Cold-treating at 120° below zero F. has a marked effect on the structure of metals which results in added durability and strength. It lengthens the life of grinding and cutting tools sometimes as much as 300 per cent. There are many other industrial applications of this new cold treatment for metals.
