As the representative of some 600,000 businessmen, his first official act was to make friendly calls on President Roosevelt, President Green of the AFL, and President Murray of the CIO. Since then he has continued to amaze radicals and conservatives alike with his unusually progressive ideas on his work for a people's capitalism. "America Unlimited" is the summing up of these ideas and represents his profound convictions regarding the economic future of this country.

With his compelling enthusiasm, Mr. Johnston comes out for the tried-and-true American maxims of freedom and opportunity. His confident enthusiasm gives them an extraordinary fresh and exciting vitality. He cogently states his case for a people's capitalism with the emphasis on rugged individualism, private enterprise, and the competitive spirit. These values still hold good, he insists, because of the miracle of American abundance.

Rev. Axel Edwards was ably assisted by Rev. Mason in the program of the Neighborhood Bible School Sunday morning. Both men gave short but impressive talks to the older members of the school and Rev. Edwards pleased all by one of his well-rendered vocal solos. During the session time was taken to give fitting tribute to the late president, Franklin Roosevelt.
