A Threat To Democracy

All eyes have been focused on the Detroit City election, and on the campaign which has preceded it. This election is not a matter of merely naming a man to hold the highest office in the City of Detroit. It goes much deeper than that.

The democratic plan of living, which we strive to hold, assumes that control of the government shall be held by all the people, and that "all the people" must mean a good cross-section of all groups, in all walks of life. The opposite to this democratic plan means group control.

The radios have been humming with talks by the candidates, and by those speaking in their behalf. Criticism has been caustic and strong, but this criticism could be made only because of attempted group control. Because of one of the candidate's alliance with an organization known to foster group control it was only natural that the opposition should seize upon this relationship and make it the primary issue in the campaign.

Down through the history of the United States one can find outstanding examples of trouble and conflict, caused by the strife between leaders in these two schools of thought. Immediately after the Civil War when the "carpet baggers" came into existence, and more recently, the regime of Huey Long are but two examples that might be mentioned.

If we here in the United States are to have democracy in a world where few other nations practice democracy, we must see that the fundamental principles of democracy continue to exist.

First, the right to vote for qualified and uncontrolled candidates. Our vote must remain the true expression of our choice, unhampered by outside interests or factions striving for control.

Secondly, we must do everything within our power to promote and encourage freedom of enterprise, based on The Golden Rule. Too many of us have forgotten the Golden Rule. Applied to our every day life, in business or at home, it can do more to preserve democracy than anything else.

Nor can we for one moment forget the responsibility we all share in social reform. It is as much our job to improve living conditions and opportunity, and to make social advantages available to all the people as it is to foster advancement in science and industry. It is a responsibility that has been brushed aside far too long, and one that we must not ignore.

With a determination to hold fast to the principles of democracy we can fight all elements which would destroy our democracy. Fighting together, we will conquer them as we have triumphed over our enemies in combat on the battlefields of the world.

The present election has made us focus our attention on this threatening power, but the danger by no means passes when election is over, and settled. The threat still exists, and our fight must go on.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY
 New High School Auditorium
 Farmington

"Adam and Fallen Man" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, November 11.
 The Golden Text (Hosea 14:1): "O Israel, return unto the Lord thy God; for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Matthew 4:23) "And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy include the following (259): "The divine nature was first expressed in Christ Jesus, who threw upon mortals the true reflection of God and lifted their lives higher than their poor thought-models could allow, as thoughts which presented man as fallen, sick, sinning and dying."

Looking Back Through The Enterprise Files

TEN YEARS AGO (November 21, 1935)
 New Men To Be Added To WPA Roll

Seventeen new WPA workers are expected to report this week in addition to the nine men now working on the three pieces of sewer construction. Because of the lack of men, work has been slow and of the 1,050 feet of interceptor which is to be laid only 350 feet, have been placed. This project is the first of three jobs, which the Federal Administration has granted Farmington.

Drinking Places To Close At 2
 Drinking places throughout the Farmington area may henceforth remain open until 2 a.m. every morning instead of closing at 1 a.m., as a result of an order of the Michigan Liquor Control Commission. This section is included in the order which broadened the 2 a.m. closing provision heretofore effective for Wayne County only, to include the southern parts of Oakland and Macomb counties as well.

Ninety Days Given Drunk Drivers
 "Ninety days in jail" will be the sentence read to all drunken drivers who appear before Judge John J. Schutte Jr., in the Municipal Court and no alternative of paying a fine will be permitted. Judge Schutte in inaugurating the new policy took the lead among justices in an effort to reduce deaths and injuries caused by drunken driving.

FIVE YEARS AGO (November 7, 1940)
 City Voters Support Republicans

All Republican candidates received large pluralities in the City of Farmington at the recent number of persons cast their votes Tuesday. The Republican presidential ticket of Willkie and McNary received 503 votes to 224 for Roosevelt and Wallace in the City, while Governor Lauren Dickason won easily over his Democratic opponent, Murray D. Van Wagoner, although Dickinson was defeated in the state totals.

Armistice Program To Be Held
 A program commemorating Armistice Day will be held Monday, November 11, under the auspices of the school and the American Legion, at the high school gymnasium, beginning at 11 a.m. Mayor Leo Gildemeister has issued a proclamation designating Monday as a day to be observed as a holiday in Farmington.

Draft Advisory Board Named
 An advisory board to assist draft registrars in preparing draft questionnaires, claims of deferment and in other similar problems has been appointed for draft district No. 3, which has jurisdiction over Farmington Township and the City of Farmington. Members of the Board are L. Harry Lodge, Donald P. Noble, Marion L. Johnson, William Hoult, Milford, and Harold Schlegel, Keego Harbor.

There's gold in the preservation of outstanding historical landmarks.

Such is the experience of nearby states such as Indiana, Wisconsin, Illinois and Ohio, all of which have purchased and are maintaining unusual historical sites and properties as a part of the state's recreational service to the public.

Michigan, the leading tourist state in the Mid-West, has lagged in this field. As we pointed out last week, historic Fort Mackinac at Mackinac Island is under state ownership and control and is perhaps the best known tourist spot of the entire state. It provided the setting for the 1945 governors' national conference last July.

Through the efforts of county boards of supervisors, local historical societies and interested citizens, many historical sites in Michigan have been suitably marked and thus memorialized with tablets and monuments. But few original properties have been preserved.

In addition to Old Fort Drummond and to the old Mormon printing house at St. James, Beaver Island, which we publicized last week as affording opportunities for preservation of unique historical landmarks that would appeal greatly to Michigan people and to outside tourists, there is a stretch of the old Clinton-Kalamazoo barge canal between Utica and Rochester which still survives today as a relic of a century-old, pioneer period.

Part of this waterway is being utilized by the Utica Milling company, Utica, for purpose of water-power.

It would be very simple for the State of Michigan to set aside a portion of this canal as a historical memorial. Canal land has been purchased already by the state conservation department in its development of the Southeastern Michigan recreational program.

This canal was started in 1835 as part of an ambitious state improvement program designed to provide transportation by boats from Lake St. Clair to Lake Michigan via the Clinton and Kalamazoo rivers. Michigan's boy governor, Stevens T. Mason, headed the movement. When money ran out, the canal was abandoned.

Our column research this week revealed the fact that the Indiana department of conservation is acquiring a 14-mile stretch of the old Whitewater canal between Brookville and Laurel for preservation as a historic memorial.

Formal transfer of the property, financed by the Whitewater Canal association is expected to be completed this month. Announcement was made Nov. 1.

In Indiana the state government through the department of conservation, "cashing in" on public interest in early Indiana history. The state has acquired the following properties and is preserving them as recreational tourist spots: George Rogers Clark memorial, Nancy Hanks Lincoln memorial, Corydon State Capitol memorial, James F. D. Lanier memorial, old Goshen Church memorial, Pigeon Roost memorial, Tippecanoe Battlefield memorial, and the Wilbur Wright airplane memorial.

The Whitewater canal memorial would be added to the above.

In Wisconsin the preservation of historical landmarks is conducted under auspices of the conservation department as the operating agency for maintenance.

Like Michigan, Wisconsin has an active state society for historical research and publications, but groups of this kind are not equipped to administer the needs of properties, and hence the conservation department is the preferred medium.

The Wisconsin conservation department is charged with the preservation of the following:

Nemadji National park at Cassville, consisting of original buildings on the farm of Wisconsin's first governor. State purchase, 1935.

Wisconsin's first capital building at Belmont. Gift in 1921.

Cashish, a pioneer park at Delfield to Civil war family prominent in Wisconsin history. Gift in 1916.

Tower Hill pioneer memorial park at Spring Green where lead shot was made. Gift in 1932.

Other potential tourist attractions which would afford a delightful Sunday automobile trip for Michigan residents and an interesting stop for visiting tourists: Oldest covered bridge in Michigan, a relic of pioneer days.

Oldest remnant already by the state conservation department in its development of the Southeastern Michigan recreational program.

This canal was started in 1835 as part of an ambitious state improvement program designed to provide transportation by boats from Lake St. Clair to Lake Michigan via the Clinton and Kalamazoo rivers. Michigan's boy governor, Stevens T. Mason, headed the movement. When money ran

NO STEAM

There's many a "goody-goody" guy
 Who boasts of his pious ways,
 Who'd be a blinger if he had
 The steam of his younger days.

THE WEARY TRAVELER

In days gone by the traveler
 Walked 'til his feet were numb,
 But now he wears himself all out
 By pointing with his thumb.

Tint Starch
 White starch shows on dark fabric. If starching is necessary, tint the starch before using. For brown clothes, tint starch with coffee or tea. For dark blue clothes, use blueing in the starch. Or use the ready-tinted starch on the market. Another way, to stiffen dark fabric is with a gelatin dip. Soften two tablespoons of granulated gelatin in a little cold water, then dissolve it in two or three quarts of boiling water, and let cool to lukewarm. Dip garment in the solution, squeeze and dry.

Primary Colors
 The primary colors are red, yellow and blue. All others stem from these. The secondary colors are orange, green and violet—formed by combining two primaries. Tint yellow and blue give green; blue and red give violet; and red and yellow make orange. Complementary colors are those opposite each other in the color wheel, such as red and green, yellow and violet and blue and orange. A pair of complements is made up of one primary and one secondary color.
