WASHINGTON DIGEST

Good old axioms on how to bring pressure on congress . . . and how not to . . . If you want to get your favorite bill passed.

Anti-OPA strategy all along has been to postpone action on OPA as long as possible. Supporters have fought for action. At this moment, though some unforeseen event may change the course, it looks as if the odds favored postponement but not defeat.

It first appeared that ordinary conventional methods used by the professional lobbyists were going to kill the bill. Then it looked as if spontaneous written letters were going to save it. In both cases, the effort was overdone. There were too many expensive advertisements in the newspapers, sponsored by the various business institutions fighting price control.

Too much money easily identified as coming from vested interests was being spent.

Then it was that John Q. Citizen sat himself down, took up his pen or often his pencil, and wrote an undictated letter because he (most) was really stirred up. Congress began to take heed of those letters. They were obviously spontaneous, they were written by men and women who had made up their own minds. They were voters with convictions, and it was very likely those convictions would be registered at the polls.

But once more, Pellon was heaped on Ossa. There was a nationwide organization by the labor people, the veterans, the women's clubs. The mail and telegram piled up, but the senators weren't too interested. The letters were sincere enough. But the majority revealed that they were inspired not by an inner urge, a look into the pocketbook or pantry but by the persuasive voice over the phone or at the front door. Do what you will, the kind of communication produced by these methods is very likely to have a second-hand appearance which the experienced congressman can recognize.

That is why, despite the number of letters and telegrams; the registered telephone calls; senators were content to discuss the British loan and even ponder such complicated matters as atomic energy before hastening to line up for OPA.

Common sense tells you that your control over your car lessens as you increase your speed. Records prove this. They say . . . Allow yourself more time in which to reach your destination if necessary. You must do more than drive carefully.
You must drive safely!

FROM THE FARM-BELT CIVIC ASSOCIATION

One of the most important things we stand for is civic improvement. Much can be accomplished in this field with no expense to anyone. In fact it takes only a little thought and consideration of the rights of others. Yes, and a little pride in the conditions around you. It was with this thought in mind that the Association brought to the attention of the proper officials the practice of dumping rubbish on Flamingo, in the creek which drains the property of many families. Signs were posted prohibiting this violation. Those responsible have not, however, taken heed of the signs. In all probability the parties at fault are members of our association. Also likely, these same persons have joined because they felt the need of some sort of improvement around their home. Why, then,

When buying nuts in their shells, homemakers sometimes are uncertain as to how much "meat" they will yield. This yardstick will help eliminate guesswork: one pound of unshelled almonds yields about one cup of shelled kernels; one pound of almonds, about one and one-half cups; one pound of peanuts, about two cups; one pound of pecans, almost one and one-half cups; one pound of English walnuts, make more than one and one-half cups halved kernels; and one pound of black walnuts, about one-half cup broken kernels.

KIM SIGLER, Republican candidate for Governor, will speak in Farmington at 8:30 a.m., Tuesday, June 4th. He will keep graft out of State government.—Paid Political Adv.
