WEST POINT PARK

By
MISS L. A. AULT

Mrs. George Middlewood and children have been enjoying a vacation visit with Mrs. Middlewood's mother in northern Michigan.

Miss Ina Mae Tallman has accompanied her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shuman, on a vacation trip to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rehahn spent the Fourth visiting relatives in other parts of Michigan.

After a stay of several weeks with relatives in Detroit, Mrs. Margaret Martin has returned to her home on Hubbard Ave.

Carl Borland of Detroit was recently visiting in West Point Park.

Mrs. Edward Stromoski, from Wayne, was a visitor in West Point Park Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Commis and children, from Wayne, were visiting with their grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Martin, one evening last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Keyser from Huntington Woods and their house guests, Mrs. John Newman, Mrs. Arthur Bosley and Mrs. T. J. Stevia, all from near Akron, were calling in West Point Park Thursday evening.

Miss Edith Brautigan from Canton, O., spent the week end with relatives in this vicinity.

Mrs. Jack Omas and daughter, Ruth Anne, from Toledo, spent the week end with relatives in West Point Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ault, Sr. arrived Thursday night for a week-end visit with Mr. Ault's mother, Mrs. J. A. Ault.

Mrs. Clyde Buckingham is recuperating from severe burns inflicted on both hands while trying to fish in her home one evening last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ault, Jr. and daughter, Dorothy Dall; also Wayne M. Ault, escorted two carloads of young people from Ohio and Pennsylvania on a trip to Canada Saturday morning.

The Ault quintet of young ladies, the Misses Dolores, Lora, Shirley, Phyllis and Helen Ruth Ault all acted as hostesses to a picnic and swimming party at Homestead Sunday afternoon.

Most of the participants were visiting young men and women from Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Donald Kauranen, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kauranen is spending the summer with his grandfather in northern Michigan.

Henry Szeland, is suffering from a painful injury as a result of his hand getting caught in a slamming car door one day last week.

Rev. Lester Ault, from Washington, Pa., spoke in interesting fashion to the Neighborhood Bible School Sunday morning. He also Miss Mary Lou Sproles and Thomas Ault, all from near Washington, Pa., were Fourth of July week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Ault on Irving Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Adams and Mrs. George Brautigan from near Pittsburgh, Pa., were Fourth of July week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ault.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Ault and son, Wayne, also Miss Audrey Roberts enjoyed a long drive out Chicago way Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Chambers of Wayne.

Austin Ault and his nephew, had charge of the evening service in the Neighborhood Church. Miss Frances Kauranen contributed a well-received vocal solo to the program.

The regular every-other-week meeting of the Sunshine Sisters was held in the Neighborhood Church Wednesday afternoon, July 2nd. An interesting session was in order. A Japanese program was planned for the next meeting which will be on July 17th. All girls and women of the community are invited to be present.

him out. You know, "eternal vigilance."

KE LEAVES

SECRETS UNTOLED

The final report of General Eisenhower to the combined chiefs of staff, which has at last been released, is a splendid example of terse and comprehensive exposition.

Into less than 125 pages is compressed the epic of the greatest military operation in history, extending from D-Day to V-E Day.

It is unfortunate, for the sake of mystery lovers, that the document does not go into detail concerning one phase of the invasion which has rightly been called "the greatest deception in history"—the clever ruses which caused the enemy to make his fatal miscalculations.

The Germans knew that the Allied landing must be made somewhere within a relatively limited length of shoreline, but despite this, they were completely deceived as to where that landing was to be. The result was that the Allies were able to get a foothold which they might never have been able to secure, had the Germans guessed the prospective location of the real beachheads.

Obviously, the natural place for a landing would be in reasonable proximity to Calais, where the English channel is narrowest. Actually, the nearest beachhead was established more than a hundred miles farther to the west, but the whole German 15th army remained immobilized in that locality, until it was too late.

But even after the landings were made, the Germans were not sure they were the main objective.

This was because of a five-prong plan of deception, all the prongs pointing to simulated diversionary attacks by land, sea and air, away from the actual invasion area.

One simulated attack was at Cap d'Antifer, northwest of Le Havre, far to the east of the invasion area. There, planes, ships and balloons moved in, gradually producing echoes on the German radar warning instruments similar to the approach of a convoy.

Another fake landing was staged in the direction of Boulogne, still farther east, with 16 ships and accompanying planes. The steady patrolling of the skies was taken by the Germans to be the cover of an oncoming armada.

Far to the west, halfway down the Cherbourg peninsula, and at various other points, dummy airborne invasions were carried out. The Germans finally decided that the real thing was approaching Boulogne, and opened up with all they had. Meantime, the actual invasion forces crossed the channel without any interference by air or sea.

It was a great fake.

A CASE FOR THE FORSAKEN 'R'

As a midwesterner born, I have studied many years for the letter "R."

Therefore I was overjoyed to find further distinction for the "Rs" as against the "R-nots."

It was in that strangely intriguing "Book About a Thousand Things" by George Stimpson (whose "Book About the Bible" I have mentioned before; in these columns) that I learned that "R" and "L" are the "last and most difficult consonants added to speech."

VETERANS

COMMUNITY COUNCILS IMPORTANT SAYS GENERAL ERSKINE

The retraining and Reemployment Administration plan of the President to spur the development of local advisory centers for veterans, has indicated that it will stimulate in communities cooperative local programs in which public and private agencies can work together for the benefit of veterans.

"Where advisory or referral centers work to integrate the voluntary activity of citizens and local agencies with that of the state and Federal government, impetus is given the nationwide community-centered effort so essential to the peacetime reversion of service men and women," said General Erskine, director.

"Veterans are confronted by certain problems in readjustment for which the V.A. and other governmental agencies can offer no effective solution. These problems frequently result from the need for employment, housing, advice on personal affairs, and on other questions requiring hometown assistance. Here the veteran is helped by the people of his community, they bring to him a personal understanding of his problems that will place him in a far better position to utilize and profit by the benefits provided him by Federal agencies," according to General Erskine.

This is particularly true in the veterans' associations with the Veterans Administration, inasmuch as this Administration provides locally the great burden of federal benefits and privileges.

Managers of Veterans Administration offices have been directed to offer such counsel, aid and encouragement as may be given in the legal performance of their duties to assist local public and civic agencies in the formation and operation of advisory centers ofering needed services to veterans.

The full cooperation of Veterans Administration managers in the formation and operation of advisory centers has been directed by General Erskine, who said, "It will be of invaluable aid to the veterans, and this cooperation will make the center more worthwhile by mobilizing all community and governmental resources in the full re-establishment of veterans."
