The bride's mother chose a dinner gown of tulle, Jersey, and long rose tulle gloves. A large velvet rose hat added to her costume. Her corsage was white lilies and pink carnations.

BLUE STAR MOTHER'S PLAN ACTIVITIES

please remember that he might not have come back at all if some other mother's son hadn't given him all to save your boy for you. Would you want to be forgotten in your sorrow?

The work has just begun, and we must not fall then now. They need us, Mothers. Such is the message of the following:

MOTHERS, WHERE ARE YOU?

Out of a world in turmoil
A light begins to shine;
Bringing a hope of peace on earth,
Yes, peace for yours and mine.

The fighting now is over,
This job is almost done.
But let us not forget the fact
That the peace is not yet won.

For Mothers here and everywhere
Whose boys are homeward bound,
Or have returned to open hearts
And happiness profound.

We glory in their boy's return
With medals rightly won,
And hope in life they find their place
All filled with joy and fun.

But mothers, this is not the end.
You have your boy, it's true—
Just now about your neighbor's son—
Will he be coming through?

Perhaps a mother right next door—
Go to her if you can,
And help console a broken heart
For a son lost at Bataan.

And many other mothers need
You and you and you!
In the greatest work you've ever done.

To help their boys come through.
"Where are these boys?" you rightly ask.
Just where did I come in?
Your answer is the Blue Star Mothers.
Join now and help them win.

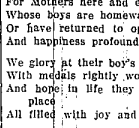

Their work is now for the boy not back;
On a hospital cot he lays.
He dreams of home and Mother,
He longs for happy days.

Mother, be you look at your lonely son
That God has returned to you,
Please don't forget his buddy
That helped pull your boy through.

Perhaps some other mother's son—
Your boy's comrade so true,
Has lost a leg, an arm or both
To bring him back to you.

Thousands like him are at Percy Jones—
Convalescent for weeks or years;
The sight of which would break sleeves, draped in tapered length to points over her hands. The gown was fashioned with a long train. Her finger tip illusion net veil edged with lace held a crown of orange blossoms, and she carried a spray of gladioli and baby breath, with her silver rosary, for the service.

The maid of honor, Jacqueline Bezesky of Detroit, a cousin of the bride, wore a princess styled blue dotted swiss dress. Her blue dotted swiss headdress formed a ruffling across her head and gracefully flowed out into a veil. She wore white lace gloves and carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations, gladioli and blue larkspur.

Mrs. Louise Cindric of Pennsylvania, sister of the groom, and Virginia Dickerson of Detroit were bridesmaids. They were dressed in pink dotted swiss with pink headresses and carried colonial bouquets of pink carnations, gladioli and larkspur.

Claudia and Caryole Costello, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Costello of Detroit, were flower girls. Their floor length gowns were white dotted swiss, trimmed with shoulder ruffing, one in white and one in blue. Satin ribbons across their heads made a headress. They carried miniature colonial bouquets of white, pink and blue flowers.

Andrew Cindric, brother of the groom, acted as best man. Paul Cindric, also a brother of the groom, and Frank Cindric, a cousin, served as ushers.
