votes from a constituency, providing a contribution which contributes less than nothing to the highly important function of running a committee. And chairmen have to come away from their responsibility that there are fewer of them.

Administration Democrats might have acted otherwise had they realized what they were doing. They leave the liberal Democrats to elect two northern Democrats when to retain their chairmanships will mean new and modernized congressmenizes next January. They are the Wash State Democrats, the Wisconsin of New York (provided, of course, they are re-elected as the Democrats hold the chair in a majority party).

The rest of the chairmanships to the South and since some court senators persist in voting against the more liberal measures of the administration and join with the Republicans on other issues, just to show their independence, the chairmanships are somewhat precarious positions.

There is still another factor which doesn't sit too well with a number of northern Democrats, either. They don't use set-up, the chairman of a committee is the most influential - though for he is not provided with a large and efficient staff. The work of his committee will be more important than his daily work. The chairman of a committee won't be spread as thin as this is as.

Since the circle of chairmen more exclusive and since a member's perquisites and contacts will be greater, the chairmanship is a jewel plumb than even the

Chaise Back

The shape of the back of the chair is important to comfort. A shallow curve backward between the legs prevents pressure on the spine. A spoon-handle curve rising from the seat supports the hips and allows one to lean back comfortably and still retain an alert position. A chair back that reaches a height of 22 inches is the best.

The first step, which the Senate Business boys would like to see taken, is to get the War Relocation Authority out of the hands of the administrator on whom they agree. They feel the official should be civilian rather than an Army man. The incumbent, at this writing, Maj. Gen. Robert Littlejohn, is expected to leave his post in the fall. Relieved of WRA responsibilities, he would have no successor indicated.

The next step desired, after hearings, is a thorough reorganization of military and civilian personnel. The War Relocation Authority, an overblowing of the whole setup of the agency. This, its proponents of the plea claim, will only be in the good of the veterans, the business men and the nation's economy. It is the good of the country, as well.

SMART POLITICS OUTSMART THEMSELVES

When Senator La Follette raised the question of the War Relocation Authority in the House, he was the first to rear in the form of one of the more progressive places of legislation affecting the internal affairs of a congress, the reorganization of a something occurred which was not what the Senator had in mind. The bill, which the Senate had not realized was being done, one which has caused them no little concern ever since its practical application dawdled upon them.

Higher backs took too formal to be inconvenient to use at tables and desks.

La Follette's fault, but the result of that ancient evil, seniority, was the original recognition there would have been eliminated. Congress couldn't resist that radical device, and seniority still operates. Under this procedure a senator automatically becomes chairman of any committee to which he is appointed if he has been a member of the senate longer than any other member of the majority party on the committee. This system has long been recognized as an evil.

Just having been around longer than anybody else is frequently less than a recommendation. Fortunately there are too many cases where a stuffed shirt and empty head, although they can
