

Just One Way . . .

We've found that there is only one way to conduct a funeral . . . that is to provide the same service for each family. With us, funeral cost does not effect service.

A replica of Alexander Graham Bell's first telephone and the principle by which it works was demonstrated before the Farmington Kiwanis Club Wednesday evening at Black's White House, by W. J. Banks, customer relations assistant at Detroit for the Michigan Bell Telephone Company.

Using laboratory equipment, Banks traced the conception and application of the telephone theory from Bell's first experiments in Edinburgh, Scotland, the place of his birth, to that historic occasion in Boston in 1876 when the telephone carried its first intelligible words.

Bank's demonstration-speech was prepared in honor of the 100th Anniversary of Bell's birth on March 3. Banks outlined briefly some of the background and little known events in the career of the man who first transmitted speech electrically.

In addition to his work with the telephone, Bell performed important work in many other fields. His work with the deaf, particularly his pioneering in the oral method of teaching them to speak, is rated as having significant influence on present day teaching methods in schools for the deaf.

The program chairman for the evening was Dick Taylor.

Next week Wednesday the Kiwanis will observe Ladies Night, and an enjoyable program is in store for club members and their wives.

LATEST WORD IN JACKET BLURB

"Lydia Bailey" by Kenneth Roberts. Mr. Roberts has covered many interesting phases of the Revolutionary and War of 1812 in earlier novels. In this novel he focuses our attention on the crucial years from 1798 to 1806. He reminds us of many of our early dangers as a nation. The story of internal dissension in America, the plan of Napoleon to recover Louisiana, the paying of tribute to Barbary pirates of Tripoli and with them, the use of the first person in this tale affords Mr. Roberts an opportunity for a good deal of philosophizing and all through the book we are reminded that, while men are honorable, governments are often dishonorable. The story is packed with action and adventure and history. Mr. Roberts tells us that the history is based on years of careful search in obscure volumes and in manuscript collections.

"Standard Book of British and American Verse" edited by Nolla Brady. This book is a comprehensive collection including 240 poets and 585 poems, the most important in British and American literature. With few exceptions every poem is complete. It contains the complete Rubaiyat, Ancient Mariner, Ballad of Reading Goal, The Hound of Heaven. Three complete indexes, first line, title and author, with the chronological arrangement of poems, makes the book a delightful one for instant reference.

"Camps and Cottages and How to Build Them" by Charles D. White. This book contains complete, tested plans and instructions for building cottages, camps and guest houses, including outdoor furniture and cooking. It enables a person with absolutely no experience to make for himself an everlasting summer place if he has nothing more than the tools, some lumber and a bit of land he loves. If the reader does not want to do the work himself, there is no better book to consult, for it contains the actual plans of fourteen camps, cottages and guest houses.

These and many other interesting books are available at the Farmington City and Township Library. The library is open Monday and Friday from 6:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. and on Wednesday and Saturday from 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. and from 2:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.
