Bill Would Aid Women

Women will have the right to deduct alimony payments from their state income tax if legislation introduced by Sen. William Faust (D-Westland) is approved.
"I have also proposed an amendment to the state income tax act which would eliminate a clearly discriminatory provision enabling men only to deduct alimony payments," said Faust.
"The courts have found that some women are capable of supporting their husbands and ordered them to pay alimony. Well, I think it should work both ways: if a woman has the 'right' to pay alimony, she should also have the 'right' to use alimony as a deduction in computing her state income tax."
"I can't see anyone voting against legislation which would eliminate such an antiquated provision of the law," he said.
