Drying-Oil from Ottilela

The ottilela tree has been known for centuries in Brazil. It lives to be a hundred or more years and grows sometimes to a height of 100 feet. The ottilela is valuable on account of the drying-oil extracted from its seeds. The oil is similar to Chinese tung oil and is also of importance to many modern industries.

Naming Oriental Rugs

Names of Oriental rugs, only in a general way, are an indication of quality. Rugs get their names from the geographical districts where they are woven. One rug woven in the city of Hamadan, for example, might be worth considerably more than another rug of the same size from the same city. Oriental rugs made in Iran usually have their sides finished with overcasting, but many Caucasian rugs have relaxed sides.

Keep Eyes Longer

That eyes stay young longer and the keen hearing associated with youth is retained for a longer time when an ample supply of milk is a part of the daily diet, recently was reported by Dr. Stettin Erikson of University of Kentucky.

AUGUST BRIDE

Mrs. Paul W. Starck

Marian Elizabeth Devroy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Devroy of Orchard Lake Road, exchanged wedding vows with Paul William Starck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Starck of Waverly Avenue, Dearborn, at 7:30 p.m. on August 23. The Rev. Carl Schultz officiated at the ceremony, which was performed in the Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church in Farmington and decorated with white gladioli and asters.

The bride wore a white gown with a sweetheart neckline, long pointed sleeves and train trimmed with pearls and beads to match the coronet halo, which held her finger tip veil of illusion. Her bridal bouquet was of white roses and baby nuns.

The maid-of-honor was Phyllis Loweke of Jackson, who was gown in a pale blue marquisette dress and carried a bouquet of yellow roses and baby nuns. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Robert Miller of Pontiac and Shirley Johnson of Farmington, wore pale pink gowns and carried bouquets of pink roses and baby nuns.

The groom's best man was Robert Starck and his ushers were Duane Dates and Frank Lafferty, all of Dearborn.

Mrs. George Devroy, the bride's mother, wore a royal blue gown trimmed in silver and a gardenia corsage, while the groom's mother, Mrs. Paul Starck, wore a grey print gown and a purple orchid.

A reception was held in the church parlors where cake, ice cream and coffee were served. A lunch was given later for out of town guests who were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Devroy and family of Caseville, Mrs. Ward Caster of Holly, Mr. and Mrs. King Cile and daughter of Caseville and Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Loweke and family of Jackson.

The new Mrs. Paul Starck, Jr., is a graduate nurse from Henry Ford Hospital and the groom is employed by the Ford Motor Company and is manager of the Ford Baseball Team.

The newlyweds will reside in Detroit after their honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls.

FRESH PEACHES SHOULD BE PRESERVED NOW

Is your school facing the problem of serving lunch to children this year with less money to buy the food than before? Canning now will help stretch those precious funds throughout the school year.

Don't fail to preserve plenty of peaches now, say Michigan State college food authorities. There is an abundant supply this year, and to use peaches is to economize.

School children like peaches and peaches are good for them. They're a good source of vitamin C and it's not easy to supply enough of that vitamin for children. Canned or frozen peaches will be equally popular on the school lunch menu.

Sugar is not the problem this year that it has been and little equipment is necessary to process the peaches. They're easy to preserve — you'll find directions for canning or freezing easy to follow. Directions for canning peaches in either glass or tin containers with the latest information on length of canning time can be found in a new bulletin published by the United States Department of Agriculture. Obtain "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" Bulletin No. AIS-64, from your county extension office or from the Bulletin Office, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

If you plan to freeze the peaches you will find directions in the Michigan State college extension bulletin 205, "Preservation of Fruits and Vegetables by Freezing." You can get a copy from your county extension office or from the Bulletin Office, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Preserving Minnows
An easy way to preserve enough minnows for a day or two of fishing is to place them side by side, about an inch apart, on a piece of cloth sprinkled with salt. Cover the minnows with salt and roll them up. While the salt will cause them to shrink somewhat, water will make them plump again.

FORESTRY HEAD SEES DECREASE IN WILD LIFE

Michigan can expect a gradual and continual decrease in most types of wild life, according to Paul A. Herbert, head of the forestry department at Michigan State college.

Forty years ago foresters were predicting a timber famine, Herbert points out. The years have proved those predictions correct. Today we can predict a wildlife famine with equal confidence, he believes.

Most of the larger forms of wildlife of major interest to the tourist and hunter require cover and food of a kind that is rapidly disappearing in Michigan. Without such protective cover and food it is inevitable that a large part of the wildlife will starve or be destroyed.

According to Herbert, clean farming and the increase in dairy farming reduce both food and cover of farm game animals and birds. On the non-agricultural areas which are growing up into dense forests the same reduction can be predicted because the species of trees that grow over most of Michigan do not produce much food for wildlife. The dense tree stands, as they grow older, shade out most of the plants that furnish both food and shelter to most kinds of forest wildlife.

COULD YOU EVER FORGET?

The way ahead seemed clear. In a moment of careless relaxation the driver swung his eyes from the road. In that same moment a ball bounced into the street — after it ran a little child. It was only a brief moment, but long enough for a lifetime of regret.

Last year more than 3,500 American children under the age of 14 were killed by automobiles, 160,000 were injured. This State, in some degree, contributed to that toll.

With school days here again, child casualties will rise unless every individual driver makes it his self-appointed responsibility to safeguard these young lives from harm.

When driving through school zones — and streets where children are at play — use extreme caution. Always be ready for split-second action, even though moving at moderate speed. Anticipate the unexpected.

There's no indemnity that can restore a human life. If, because of one careless act of yours, a child died or its young body were maimed — could you ever forget?
