Local Farmers To Join In Harvester Anniversary

"Going to Chicago" on October 23 — which has been designated as "Michigan Day" — is becoming popular with a number of our citizens these days. At least that is what we are told by Clarence Everett, of Everett Implement Company.

It seems that International Harvester Company is celebrating its "Hundred Years in Chicago" by staging a huge display of the achievements of agriculture during the past century. Four great tents, up to 230 feet long, erected at the south end of Soldier Field on Chicago's lake front, house this remarkable story of the old and the new.

An old 1847 Chicago street with the original McCormick factory in the background is the first sight that greets the visitor. Then he passes into a large "historical" tent where many of the original machines used about a century ago are on display. Murals, pictures and dioramas tell vividly the story of the beginnings of agricultural progress in the Midwest in 1847.

Then the visitor goes into another huge tent where the products of Harvester's Chicago manufacturing operations are shown and demonstrated. Machine tools are at work and certain types of assembly are going constantly. Baler twine is being spun and wound into balls for next year's haying. Charts and graphs show the contribution made by work and the general well-being of Chicago during one hundred years.

A third big tent — the largest of the group — portrays the progress of agriculture during the past century. Large photos and murals depict the results of a century of farm mechanization. All this story is unfolded in an interesting and understandable manner so as to sustain the interest of young and old, city born and farm folks.

Beyond, in a great open area, the latest models of tractors, trucks, combines, corn pickers, hay machines, as well as a diversified line of other up-to-the-minute farm operating equipment may be seen and examined at close range.

Then there is plenty of entertainment for everyone. Each afternoon and evening there is something going on. Music and thrills make the day complete for every visitor regardless of his special interest.

FESTIVE OCCASION
ENDS '47 SEASON
AT MEADOWBROOK

Meadowbrook Country Club will have its final dinner and dancing party of the 1947 social season Saturday, November 1, when the club will hold its annual Halloween party.

Costuming for this fête will be optional. Awards will be given for unusual costumes worn by those who choose to come in fancy dress.

Music from 7 until 9 o'clock, during the cocktail hour and dinner, will add to the festivity, and dancing will start at 9 and continue until 1 a.m.

Con Metz, of Farmington, is entertainment chairman in charge of plans. On the assisting committee are Mrs. Metz, Mr. and Mrs. Michael T. Blake, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Monahan, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Cooper, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. James O. Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. Harold V. Field, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Biddiger, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Griffin.

There will also be dinner and dancing at Meadowbrook on October 25 after the Michigan-Minnesota football game.

Entertaining Guests
Average guests spend 37,173 per cent of their time looking at the floors of their host's home, says a recent survey.

Cost of League Balls
Major league ball clubs spend over $128,000 for baseballs each season.

WEST POINT CHURCH TO HAVE NOTED EVANGELIST

The West Point Church of Christ is making preparations for a series of Biblical lectures to be given by Editor R. H. Boll of Louisville, Kentucky, beginning October 19 and continuing for ten days.

Evangelist Robert H. Boll was born in Germany and came to America about fifty-five years ago. As a young man in the old country, he had received a religious background, being educated for the priesthood. Upon arriving in America, a friend in Tennessee gave him instructions in the Word of God and he immediately became interested in primitive Christianity.

Since those early days he has become outstanding in the Church of Christ as teacher, pastor, editor and evangelist. Aside from his duties as minister of the Portland Avenue Church of Christ, Louisville, Kentucky, for the past forty years, he has evangelized throughout the United States as well as finding time to become a prolific writer.

In 1907 he became editor of Gospel Guide and for six years was first-page editor of the Gospel Advocate. Following this position he was offered space in five other papers. Since January, 1916, he has edited Word and Work, as well as taken upon himself the extra work of writing a Bible School Quarterly for adults. The present minister, Elder J. Scott Greer, of the West Point Church, is one of teacher Boll's former students and attributes much of his success due to the inspired and general well-being of inspiration received from this good teacher.

The Church Committee has decided that services will be conducted each evening at 7:45 p.m. throughout each week day and probably at 3:00 p.m. service on Sunday, October 26. There is to be no offering except on Sundays.
