If your telephone grew in SIZE the way it's growing in VALUE...

It's a good thing we don't have to make your telephone bigger every time we make it possible for you to call more people. You'd have to move out of the house to make room for the telephone.

Except for the increasing size of your telephone directory, you may not realize how the telephone system is being enlarged. We're adding thousands of new telephones every month.

Each of these new telephones means someone else you can call. It may be a butcher, a baker, a hardware store, a doctor or lawyer or druggist. Or it may be a friend or relative you've not been able to reach until now.

The point is that each new telephone means more errands your telephone can run for you... more jobs it can do for you. It's getting more valuable every day.
