

Girl Scouts Enjoy Varied Camping

The camping activities of Girl Scouts in the Farmington area are carried on under the direction of Mrs. William Barnum, chairman of the camping committee of the Farmington Township Girl Scout Council, and her committee members, Mrs. Wade Dickerson, Mrs. Francis Hough, Mrs. James Little and Mrs. P. Schlotterbeck.

It is the aim of this committee to provide a camping experience for every Girl Scout. During the summer months the committee has a three-fold duty. In Farmington, day camping is the largest project. It is the job of the committee to see that the camp is well staffed with trained unit leaders and camp directors, and, above all, to have an appropriate place to hold camp. This summer the girls camped at the Boys Republic Glen, which is truly a lovely place. A total of 125 girls were registered at the summer camp.

The second summer activity is troop camping, when any of the various troops may camp for four days or more. Three troops participated in this type of camping during the past year. One troop routed a cottage on a lake and from all reports, had a lovely time. The other two troops enjoyed primitive camping, and they slept in tents and cooked their meals out of doors. They, too, had a wonderful time, in spite of the rain.

The third summer activity is established camping promotion. In these camps a paid staff is on duty for the entire season. Several Farmington girls attended Camp Sherwood, the Pontiac Council's Camp. Since this area does not have its own camp, not too many girls attended established camps, but the committee hopes to promote this activity more during the current year.

During the fall and winter months it is the duty of the camping committee to find places for the girls to hike, and places to go week end camping. Camp Sherwood is open to Farmington girls for week end camping.

After having looked over Pontiac's Camp Sherwood and Detroit's Camp Metamora, Mrs. Barnum, the committee chairman, stated that she is sure someone must have some acreage on or near a lake within a 30-mile radius of Farmington. Perhaps it is some land that is not being used, and the owner would gladly let the girls have the benefit of it. If such a site is available, or if anyone knows of a place like this, it would be greatly appreciated if you would advise the Girl Scout Council. Please call Farmington 1034-M or 1542.

ONE-WAYS CIRCLE THE GLOBE

Completing a novel race to prove their durability, the lightweight one-way beer bottles return after flying around the world in opposite directions. They arrived at the starting point in Los Angeles only an hour and 22 minutes apart. The winning bottle, which was air-mailed westward, completed the 24,000 mile trip in 156 hours flying time.

FRUIT ENTERPRISE PLACES DEMANDS ON GROWER

"Fruit growing is a business that cannot be learned quickly," says H. P. Gaston of the Michigan State college horticulture department.

Of the 12 most successful orchardists in a group surveyed, only one had not been born and reared on a farm which produced some fruit. The newcomer to fruit farming would do well to work with a successful grower for a while or transfer into the new enterprise gradually, advises Mr. Gaston.

Because of the complex problems which require important decisions at frequent intervals, resident farmers are likely to do better than those who do not live on farms, the study shows. Personal direction is essential to satisfactory profit. It is also indicated that crops other than fruit are definitely of secondary importance with successful growers.

The specialist recommends a diversity of fruit crops. One crew, he explains, can thin the peaches in June, pick cherries, thin the late apples, harvest early apples, pick peaches, and then harvest the late apples. This provides a longer period of income and assures competent labor throughout.

A relatively large bearing orchard is likely to be more profitable than a small one, the survey shows. The average size of a bearing orchard on successful farms was 79 acres against 42 acres for the unsuccessful farms. Efficient management of larger orchards tends to decrease per-unit costs of production and results in increased profits and greater financial success.

Adequate equipment is also important, states Mr. Gaston. It can save time and labor when both are vital factors in successful operations. Access to adequate and convenient storage facilities relieves the pressure of selling at harvest time and gives the grower a chance to wait for a better price. A system of farm accounts will enable the grower to check past performance.
