Clarencville School Adds Student Lunch Program
Superintendent M. J. Belser announced this week that a new kitchen has been opened at the Central school of the Clarencville School District, on Eight Mile Road and that school lunches are now being served.

At present about 250 students are being served with lunches in the building and an increase in the number is expected after the holidays. Type A lunches are being served under the Federal Government program. Under this plan lunches can be furnished to school children at a reduced price.

The new room was made possible by the conversion of an old shower room. Type A lunches are also being served at the Edgewood school. The program is being handled through Clarencville's Mother's Clubs.

Sparkling Diamonds
Facets cut by experts on the raw stone reflect light and make diamonds sparkle. Because these facets pick up the yellow of gold, and the brilliance is thereby dulled, diamonds usually are set in white platinum or palladium to enhance the gem's gleam.

A family supper and Christmas program will be held at the First Methodist Church on Tuesday, December 23, beginning at 6:30 p.m., under the supervision of the Church School.

"The Nativity" will be presented as a tableau by the girls of the Senior Class directed by their teacher, Mr. Louis Gileon. Recitations will be given by children of the beginners and primary departments, and the Junior Choir, directed by Rev. A. Stanley Stone, will sing Christmas carols.

Word has been received that a visit from Santa Claus can be expected and he'll have a present for every boy and girl.

The supper will be a pot luck affair, with each teacher in the Church School being responsible for arranging a table for the parents of his students. A cordial welcome is extended to those who might not receive a direct invitation to come to the dinner and program.

Local Women Attend Institute In Detroit

Mrs. James Martin and Mrs. William Dwyer, along with some members of the Daughters of Isabella, attended a Social Action Institute at the Hotel Statler in Detroit last Saturday. The institute was presented under the auspices of the Committee on Social Action and Legislation of the Detroit Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women.

Many interesting topics were discussed by speakers on the program for the day. They covered such fields as the recognition of minority groups, the need for political awareness among women, industrial relations, and cooperative methods that might prove effective in small town groups.

SURVEY SHOWS MICHIGAN FARMERS FAVOR CO-OPS

About 90 per cent of the farmers, both members and non-members of cooperatives, feel that co-ops are "good thing" for farmers.

About 90 per cent of the farmers, both members and non-members of cooperatives, feel that co-ops do as well or better than non-cooperative business in respect to price, quality, service and efficiency of operation.

Farmers generally agree with basic policies on which cooperatives operate, but there are exceptions. The great majority of farm co-op members and non-members alike feel that cooperatives benefit non-members as well as members. In addition, both groups feel non-members get the same service from co-ops as do members.

These statements represent some of the main findings of a survey conducted in rural areas of six Michigan counties this summer by representatives of the Social Research Service of Michigan State college. The study was authorized and financed by the administrative council of the Michigan Association of Farmer Cooperatives, and conducted under the direction of Dr. Duane L. Gibson, assistant professor of sociology at Michigan State college.

The survey report, as presented by Dr. Gibson to the annual meeting of the association on the MSG campus, under the title of "Co-ops As The Farm Security Threat," also listed these findings among others:

In response to the question, "What would you say are the main advantages of co-ops for farmers?", economic advantages of co-ops and higher returns, refunds and dividends were given top rating by nearly two-thirds of the farmers.

A plurality of farmers think the "farm supply" type of co-op helps them more than the "marketing" type.

Better than 90 per cent of the farmers feel a co-op member should be allowed to join or drop out of a marketing co-op any time he wishes and should not be required to have a contract which runs for an agreed period of time.

Seventy-six per cent of the farmers answered "yes" to the question "Do you feel that you are a part owner of the co-op's you belong to?"

Eighty-six per cent of farm co-op members and 79 per cent of the non-members said that co-ops should not have to pay income taxes on their refunds to members.

A majority of farmers feel that co-ops should get new members through a direct sale of memberships rather than through holding back patronage refunds of new purchasers until they have enough to pay for memberships.

The majority of both members and non-members say that earnings held back by a co-op to build up the business should not be subject to income tax.

A total of 500 farmers, among them 112 non-members of co-ops and 388 members, were questioned in the survey. The counties in which areas were surveyed in random fashion were Branch, Lenawee, Berrien, Huron, Ottawa and Allegan.

Two graduate students in sociology, Walter Boek, of Holland Patent, New York, and Howard Kaufman, of Goshen, Indiana, did the interviewing. From the material gathered they will prepare theses to meet master's degree requirements.

retary Treasurer of Pontiac Production Credit Association; Harry Garling, Secretary Treasurer of Motor Insurance Company, and S. C. Chamberlain, retired farmer and Secretary Treasurer of the Oakland Soil Conservation District. All farmers who received ballots through this mail are urged to mark and return the ballots before the deadline date. Since the committeemen elected are responsible for developing, adapting and administering national farm programs to meet local problems and needs, it is important that the men elected really represent the choice of the majority of the farmers in the community.

Legionnaires To Have Breakfast Meeting

Members of the Groves-Walker Post of the American Legion will meet at the Legion Home on Grand River Avenue for a breakfast meeting this Sunday morning, December 21, at 9:30 a.m. Inasmuch as the regular meeting night would fall on Christmas Day, this special breakfast meeting has been arranged.

Legionnaires report that work on the Memorial Home is progressing most satisfactorily. The heating plant has been installed and workmen have started to lay brick. All members of the post extend their wishes for a happy holiday season to the many Farmington friends who contributed to make the Memorial Home a reality, and who have cooperated so splendidly in all the Legion's affairs.
