"MISS LALA" BRIGHTENS HER CORNER

MEMPHIS, TENN. — Mrs. Lain Blaylock, a crossing flag lady for the illinois Central Railroad at Poplar Street crossing here, pictured before a miniature of her station, explains to Paul Flowers, local nowmann, how she created a beauty spot around her shainly. Miss Laia, as she is known in Memphis, was bonored by the Momphis City Beautifucation Commission, with an award at a banquet which more than 690 members of Civic Groups, Gold Star Mothers and Parent Teachers Associations attended. It was from this crossing that the immertal Casey Jones left on his ill-fated run in 1900.

Finally the monster turned off the street and went up an alley. That was a great relief to me. I knew what it was. I had even ridden one when I was in the artilery, and later, but it was a shock to see a real live EQUUS CABALLUS in a city street.

LUS in a city street.

LESSON ON SAFETY
AND ALSO MORALS
On another early-morning walk to work, I saw what I thought were sparklets of ice on the street. They weren't. They were shards of shattered glass, that ominous record of cars that try to pass in the night,
but don't.
Then in rapid succession a male
and a female, one after another, dashed madly into the traffic causing pedestrians to gasp, brakes use scroam and drivers to sawar.
The female was a shapel girl skirt (and providing a "new look" for observers. The other adventurer (the male). The other adventurer (the male). The other adventurer (the male) was heard to favorably. As usual he was coming home, obviously after a wild night, face dirty, cost mussed. He's my nocturnal acquaintance, Tom, the square-jaw-led tortolse-shell terror. Both fool-hardy creatures, the lady and Tom, arrived on the other lide of the street safely—by a mitacle. I mention this in behalf of National Safety Council, also the S.P. C.A., and also the W.C.T.U.—which I think can evolve a moral from the tale.

on the head, neck or visible barto of the body."

That's the akipper's story. Mine is equally terrifying, lactually saw in the early morning, moving down New Hampshire avenue, a huge creature, whose body, like the skipper's eas scrpent, was without fins or protuberances, but unlike it, was more than two feet long the barrie-haped body was supported on four long legs which made the creature higher when it threw up its head, much higher whan it threw up its head, much higher than a man.

Do the educated people in Eng-land speak a language which would be more understandable to Shace-speare than our "hill-billies" llago? Where can we park? "Anyone answering all of these questions correctly will receive a free trip to the moon on the third rocket ship.

Ratproofing Helps To Cut Losses

Line granaries with metal when-ever possible, or install concrete footings or projecting metal flash-ings above all foundations. Sacked feeds, especially high-protein feeds, should be stored away from walls on platforms a foot or more above the floor. Its feet were not large compared to the great powerful body, and they terminated in a great claw, on mall-like substance, which would give the creature terrible weapons of offense or defense, the teeth were large and blunt, and the mouth, though not large, plainly could inflict damaging wounds. Human beings looked puny beside this creature which appeared as out of place on a Washington city street as a hippopotamus or an elephant.
