Another Drive . . .

another plea for funds, another knock at the door. Yes, Farmington has had its share and it has its job and will continue to do it — that of lending a helping hand to worthwhile organizations.

It may get pretty tiresome sometimes, it may even be a little rough on the purse strings, but Farmington will still lend a hand. Why? Because that is the way we do things in this country. We don't be lieve the financing of charities, religious groups or civic and community projects is the responsibility of the government.

In some countries it is entirely different. The only organization is the government, the church is the state and the individual desire to help others less fortunate than ourselves is never allowed birth or development. Recognized charities, civic groups, drives and projects are created out of a need and directed toward service. They are created by free people or groups of people who have the initiative and the will to help others.

Such a group of people created the Salvation Army. They saw a need and a chance to help others. Their work, their humanitarian service has been made possible through your contributions and those of your The government didn't do it. You did and will continue to do it.

Farmington will help the Salvation Army now like they will help another organization tomorrow You will do it because you can give as you wish, be cause you want to help others and because, in this country, men and groups of men rally to the aid of others without fear or hesitation.

A New Tune . . .

is beginning to make its way into the State Capitol Juke Boxes, and good or bad, it's sort of pleasing to the ears.

So far, in fact for years and years, the old song about more jobs, bigger payrolls, more bureaus and more red tape has been going round and round. The taxpaying public has gotten a little tired of it, but nobody so far has succeeded in changing the old disc.

Governor Sigler has found a new tune and whether the melody is good or bad, the idea is efficiency in government. No other single theme has been more talked about or more loudly shouted from soap box to rostrum. Yet the old Juke box kept right on thumping to the same old tune.

Just how fast this new song catches on in the State of Michigan is dépendent upon how pleasing it is to the ear of the people. That takes more than words and sheets of paper. It isn't entirely the terms of the state government streamlining plan, it's the interpretation.

If by streamlining our government, the maze of bureaucratic red tape is eliminated, if centralization of state departments means efficiency and less burden to the taxpayers, if it means taking government closer to the people, the song will hit. For if anything is needed in Michigan and in the nation, it is respect and interest in government by all the people.

That interest can only be attained by a closer re lationship of the people with their government. It can only be attained by people feeling that they are a vital part of that government. In order for them to recapture that feeling, they must be given an even louder voice in the affairs of their government.

I part of that government. In order for them to puture that feeling, they must be given an even her voice in the affairs of their government.

Respect for government comes with responsibilite toomes with efficiency and service to the people. The people and sen by the people and sen by the people. The people and sen by the people and sen by the people. The people and sen by the people and sen by the people and sen by the people. The people and sen by the ity. It comes with efficiency and service to the people. It comes with leadership recognized by the people and chosen by the people.

Some of this movey, of course, goes into food, But it takes time for the machinery to get into operation, and even after it is in operation, it is inadequate to satisfy the needs of the whole people. Much of the assistance goes into material things such as the reconstruction of factories, replacement and modernization of tools, machinery and agricultural supplies. Frequently, supplies of such simple things as rakes and shovels are so short that farms can't be worked until they are furnished. Later they will be manufactured. But that means machinery for the factories comes first. Prove Good Culnary Artists

The mother's and daughter's biaquet at the M. E. community hall last Thursday evening was a success exceeding the expectations of all. Rather elaborate praparations had been made for the occasion and the program was carried out without a hitch. The supper was prepared and served by the men of the church without let, hinderance or ald from the female contingent and therefore they are entitled to all credit for the excellence of the layout. With determination and afore-thought the men set out to show just what they could do as culinary artists and admirably proved their point. About 300 mothers and daughters of Farmington are convinced that dnd is not as awkward in manipulating kitchen utensits as has been popularly supposed.

Assist at Children's Hospital

A number of Furmington girls, members of the Senior Scouts, began a new project on March 16, when they enlisted as aides at the Children's Hospital of Milchigan. These girls, realizing the great shortage of help in hospitals at the present time, have taken over such duties as feeding bables, helping in the kitchen, and entertaining the little patients at the hospital. They work an hour and a half cach week day night, and on Saturday they are able to give more time to the hospital. The uniforms which the girls wear they make themselves. Mrs. Fred, erick Hewitt is leader of this group of Senior Scouts.
