THIS SUNDAY ...

THIS SUNDAY ... comes Halowe'en, one of the days the youngsters look forward to the whole year long. It gives them a chance to get all dressed up, false face, and all, and there is always something about a masquerade that adds irrigue and adventure to any occasion. The good residents of our town are always willing to provide some little treat for the masqueraders as they make their rounds of Farmington's homes with their plaintive plea. "Help the poor". The older group of Hallowe'en marauders will undoubtedly be out, too — intent upon some mischlef. We just hope they confine themselves to mischlef, for already have come numerous reports to the Farmington police of destruction of property — and the police will be out in full force to see that property damage is kept to a minimum.

HOW ABOUT IT? .

HOW ABOUT 177 Do you recall having seen a much nicer sign in any of the cities and villages in this vicinity — or elsewhere — than the sign that is down on Grand River Avenue, as you approach Farmington from the east, setting forth our churches, and the time of service? The planting of vergreenes and shrubs about the sign has done much to improve its appearance, and call further attention to it. If we seem repetitious we hope you'll pardon us — but honesity, isn't it nice to have such a sign at the entrance to our city?

. . . .

EVEN THE SHOOTING . . .

VEN THE SHOUTHO... over, as the pheasant season ended this week. Now all that remain re the stories about the beautiful ones that got away — to be of geneted throughout the days shead, that is, of course, until the decu-unting season arrives, and then the hunting enthusiasts will have t of stories — and who knows, perhaps they may hav better to them than any story they could possibly dre here are some large plans afoot as Farmington sportsh ady the nake their plans to go north.

THE HALLOWE'EN SPIRIT . .

That likes a firm hold on our merchants. You'll find displays and wi dows about the city gally decorated for the season. One of the mo attractive is the show-room window at Bellinster Buick Sales, whe happy looking pumpkin face leers out at you from his setting of cor-stalks and fall leaves. You'll find other displays liked up just for 11 best for 11 stalks and fail leaves. Four into durine uspears season, too — at our grocery stores, and of co bank window on Grand River, where Hattons display of hunting equipment.

THAT HAPPY SMILE ... you see on the faces of Detroit Edison Manager Harley Walters and his staff means that they are moving into their new, modern Edison Office on Grand River Avende, Forge of habit may take you to the old office on Farmington Road until you get used to the idea, but beginning Monday, November I, you'll find them at the new office. You're invited to stop in and see the new office - no wonder they are all antidus to have you come in, for it is truly an office they can be proud of.

OUR GIRL SCOUTS ... are celebrating another anniversary this next week, beginning with special services at our local Churches on Sunday, October 31. You'll find the various troops, all in ulform, at the morning worship services. In addition, a special outdoor activity has been planned for Farmington Girl Scouts, to celebrate the occasion. We're always glad to take this opportunity to may a little special tribute to our Girl Scouts, for they have a mighty fine organization.

HERE WE ARE ...

HERE WE ARE ... practically at the end of October already! Remember when the month started — only yesteriay, or so it seems, and now we are going into November. Just to jog you up a bit, Thanksgiving is only 28 days off aboping days remaining before Christmas! Folls who have con-clemitously tacked avaa ecertain amount each week into a special Christmas Club are feeling rather haps, just about this time of the year, to think that they have done just that. Their biggest Christmas worry is what to get for whom — they have the wherewithal to get it.
