'LONG ABOUT NOW:
Our country's Pappy, George Washington, slung his little ole ax over his little ole shoulder and went out and whacked down a cherry tree, so far lack of anything better to do the country is celebratin' National cherry week. Far be it from us to detract from our forefathers, even if three of 'em never came home - we got the cherries and we're willing to sell 'em - we've kept 'em long enuf. They're all No. 2 size cans. The pie cherries (sour kind) are 2/49c. Then there's some Royal Ann cherries, the big white ones, fer 2/59c. The big pitted black ones is gonna be 39c a can. And speakin' of cherry trees reminds us we got some new frozen dog food. It's all pure horse meat and we'd like you to git some fer your dog so you buy one package fer 24c and fer one penny more you can git another 1 lb. package. While you're diggin' around the frozen food case git some of the 39c strawberries. You won't be sorry cause they're terrible good. Our frozen food case is on the south wall of the store.
Quick now - turn left and right there in the dairy case you'll find butter fer 67c a lb. You should grab off a 2 lb. package of that cheese, too. It's only 79c fer a package. Now keep movin' to your left - didcha ever see such a nice lookin' meat case? First thing you see is that cottage cheese fer 19c a lb. Gotta have a bucket of that. Oh - there's that Mickleberry's bulk sausage - it's seasoned just right - if it's only 33c a lb. we should oughta take a couple of pounds. Way down to the far end is that ring bologna fer 39c that Conroy's mentioned in their ad. The kids like hot dogs fer lunch sometimes so maybe you'd better tie a rope around 47c worth of 'em. That's a lb. aint it? Yup. They're skinless, aint they? Yup. O.K.
Don't wear yourself out now - runnin' back and forth, but you don't wanna pass up those pork butts fer 49c a lb. Those rib end pork loins look pretty elegant too. Gosh, a guy dunno what to git. Lookit the price - 39c a lb. Gotta have a loin roast, too. Hey didcha git a whiff of those cooked picnics there? Smelled good, huh? We'd better git outta here - we won't have any money left for the paper boy. Bye now.

OIL MAN TO ATTEND MARKETING SCHOOL OF SHELL COMPANY
E. C. Wheeler, district fuel oil salesman for the Shell Oil Company, Inc., has been selected to attend a three-week basic marketing school at Asbury Park, New Jersey, beginning on March 7. This is the second school of this type to be held in February and March. Wheeler, who lives at 33263 West Seven Mile, is one of ten Michigan men to attend the school at this time. He has worked for Shell since December, 1932, previously holding the position of driver salesman.
The school is held to equip marketing employees with as much knowledge as possible about the marketing of petroleum products in general and Shell's products in particular. It is part of an overall educational program sponsored by the company.

Luncheon Party

V. Kelly and Mrs. M. Harrison. An inspiring talk was given members of the circle by Chaplin Rev. Bartholomew O'R, O.F.M. He also invited the members to the dedication of the new St. Michael's Convent on Ten Mile Road, which will take place in the near future. The circle decided to have a towel shower for the new convent. Several members turned in knitted squares to be made into lap robes for cancer patients.
The current membership drive is progressing favorably and the annual spring initiation will be held April 10, the place to be announced later. Regent Helen DeWitt, chairman for the initiation will be assisted by the Past Regent, Helen Martin, Marie Cronin, Louise Brown and Irma Dwyer.
Following the meeting tea and cookies were served from a table decorated in the valentine motif. Hostesses were Stella Strye and Louise Brown. The next meeting will be held March 14.
BOND SCHOOL P.T.A.
The Bond School P.T.A. will meet at the Bond School at 8 p.m. on Monday, February 21. Movies will be shown, and refreshments are to be served by the Fourth Grade Mothers. The program is under the direction of Mrs. Robert Evans.

BANDIT ADMITS TWO GROCERY STORE ROBBERIES HERE
Robberies of the Ed Sukowicki Grocery, at Nine Mile and Middlebelt Road, and the Thomas Groves, at Grand River, have been cleared up by the confession of Arthur Sheehan, 39, who was recently shot in an attempted holdup of the Evergreen Pharmacy in Southfield Township.
Sheehan made his confession to State Police after admitting these and seven other robberies. He was shot by Gene Newsom, 48, a clerk at the Evergreen Pharmacy, on January 18.
Sheehan told police that after leaving the Evergreen Pharmacy he went down 10 Mile Road to the Lahner, turned south on Lahner to Eight Mile Road and went west on Eight Mile Road to Middlebelt. It was while he was on Eight Mile Road, somewhere between Middlebelt and Grand River, that he discarded the Army battle jacket, of olive drab, which is believed to be bloodstained from his wound in the stomach. Sheehan admitted that the 100 he got as loot from the pharmacy was in one of the jacket pockets. A little further on, on his left pocket, he discarded the gun, a .22 blind-stead automatic of foreign make.
Sheehan admitted that after discarding the jacket and gun he went on to his home near Five Mile and Harrison Roads, where he changed his shoes. He then left his house, and hitch-hiked a ride. Near Five Mile Road he was picked up by a young man driving an old car, when he told he would give him 10 if he would drive him to West Jefferson and Pulaske, in Detroit. He explained that he was sick. The driver of the car took him to the designated spot, where Sheehan got out. Police later picked him up as he was staggering along the sidewalk. They arrested him for questioning after finding he was wounded.
Both the Farmington Police and Michigan State Police are now desirous of obtaining the jacket and gun which Sheehan discarded. It is believed that children, or some passerby, may have seen one or both of the items and kept the discovery a secret for fear of reprisal. The police, however, desire the items for evidence in the case against Sheehan.
Also, they seek further knowledge of the young driver who gave Sheehan a "lift" to Jefferson and Pulaske, in the hope of checking Sheehan's whereabouts during the night of January 18.
Anyone having knowledge of the jacket or gun, as well as knowing who gave him the ride while hitch-hiking, is asked to get in touch with the police.

The first period Dearborn scored 10 points while holding the Trojans to 4 points. Clarenceville was able to score only 3 points in the second period while Dearborn was piling up 14 points. The score at the half was Dearborn Roosevelt 24 - Clarenceville 7.
Things were little different in the third period as Dearborn continued to pour it on. Clarenceville was unable to break through the Dearborn defense to score. The third period saw Dearborn leading 33 to 12.
Although the Trojans outscored their opponents in the final period, they were too far behind to even threaten. The final score was Dearborn Roosevelt 41 - Clarenceville 22.
