FARM BUREAU GROUP MEETS AT HOME OF HARRY MCCrackEN

The meeting of the West Farmington Farm Bureau discussion group was held on Thursday, March 10, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McCracken.

The group used the occasion to celebrate its fourth anniversary, and a large birthday cake added to the festivities. Thirty-six adults and eight children attended.

The regular business meeting was followed by a roundtable discussion under the leadership of Ed Schmidt, on the topic "Does World Trade Help the Michigan Farmer?" There was also a report on the new auto insurance company which is now licensed and ready to operate. Also, a lengthy report on the Blue Cross insurance plan sponsored by the Farm Bureau. Mrs. Ray Howard made the report.

A silver fork and spoon set was presented to little Alice Green, the new daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Green. This presentation of a gift is a customary procedure to the new members of any family of the Farm Bureau group.

At the close of the meeting refreshments, including the birthday cake, were served. Assisting on the refreshment committee were Mrs. Wendell Green, Mrs. Otis Green, Mrs. Otto Rexin and Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Bush.

The next meeting of the group will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Green on Fourteen Mile Road. The refreshment committee for that night will be Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Mason, Mrs. Floyd Howard and Mrs. Charles Lukfahr.

ACCIDENTS IN HOME AND STREET PROVE CHILDREN'S NEMESIS

More Michigan children die from accidents than from any disease. The accidental deaths of children occur at home than in any other place. An adult is either directly or indirectly responsible for almost every childhood accidental death.

These things Dr. Albert E. Hens (Jr.), State Health Commissioner, stressed in urging every Michigan adult to participate in the national Watch Out for Children campaign this month.

Watch out for other people's children in traffic or on crosswalks, but watch out also for hazards which threaten your own child in your own home, he said.

Of the 638 Michigan children under fifteen who were killed in accidents last year, 357 more than half — died as the result of accidents in their own home.

A child is not "safe at home" unless that home is made safe for him.

Last year 108 babies under one year died of suffocation, and 17 more under five years lost their lives in a similar fashion. An infant should have his own bed, tiny pillow and blankets and should sleep alone.

Home fires took the lives of 113 children under fifteen years. More than half of them were under five. Don't leave your children alone at home. Look for the fire hazards in your home, any one of them may take your child's life. Corroded, poor wiring and heating equipment. Keep matches out of children's reach.

Nineteen children under five years died from accidental poisoning in their homes. Where have you stored your lighter fluid, spot-remover, laundry bleach, insecticides, eye medicines and other poisonous materials? If a climbing child can reach them, move them now to a safer location.

Twenty-four children died from falls, 16 of them in their own home. Are there skates, brooms, clothes, laundry or other items on your stair steps? Are there slippery floors or skating rugs above or below the stairs? Can your child fall out of your windows or through your stair railings?

Last year 117 children between five and fifteen years were killed by automobiles as they walked, ran or played in streets and drives. Teach your child the safest route to school. Tell him he must not play in the street and why he should cross only at crosswalks and only with the light. Then use special caution when you drive in school zones just before or just after school, when you drive near neighborhood stores, theaters, or playgrounds. Keep an eye out for the child who may dart from between parked cars or from behind buses.

Drowning took the lives of 30 children last year. Give a little thought to water safety and swimming lessons for your children.

Most of the accidental deaths of children from suffocation, fires, traffic, falls, poison and drowning can be prevented if all adults will only "Watch Out for Children," Dr. Hens' conclusion.

KOREANS INCREASE FOOD PRODUCTION

SEOUL — Carrying baskets on their heads, Korean women bring noonday lunch to their farmer husbands in the fields. Under new land reforms sponsored by the Military Government, Korean farmers can now buy the land which their ancestors tilled as tenants. The program has met with much criticism both from the left and the right, but the farmers approve and have given their answer in increased production of food.

FIELD DIRECTOR PLANNING KENNY POLIO FUND DRIVE

The Board of Trustees of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation, in its 1949 Kenny Polio drive, has announced that Earl R. Tinsman, who is field director of the Foundation, is now making a tour of outstate counties in Michigan to achieve unification in the drive, soon to be undertaken, so that success will be assured.

The Kenny Foundation is endeavoring to acquaint its state committeemen with the fact that, despite the recent United Foundation Drive and aid received from various campaigns launched in some cities by the United Health and Welfare groups, a definite Kenny drive must be held. This is in order to obtain the goal of $150,000 necessary to maintain the Kenny Polio Center in Pontiac and give the parent institution in Minneapolis the percentage allotted annually to help support it and the continued training of Kenny technicians.
