ICE IS THE ANSWER—When fish started dying in the tepid water of this artificial pond in Ludlow, Mass., ice was found to be the solution. Now the team combats every day—and drops off half a ton of his wares into the pond to cool the water and keep the fish alive. Youngsters using it as a swimming pool don't object, either.

Begin More Tests For Bang's Disease

Early in July a test was begun on all cattle in Jackson and Ottawa counties for Brucellosis (Bang's Disease), reports Dr. C. F. Clark, State Veterinarian, Michigan Department of Agriculture. The deferred slaughter and calfhood vaccination plan of county testing is being carried on in these counties.

In herds where infection is found, the herd will be placed under quarantine and infected cattle may be sold for slaughter only, but owners are not required to sell them immediately for slaughter unless they so desire. Other cattle in infected herds can be held during the period of quarantine only on a permit from the State Veterinarian.

Cattle in infected herds are vaccinated without cost to the owner if he wishes. Up to the present time 12 counties have been tested under this method.

In many other counties that have been tested, the test and slaughter plan has been followed which requires the immediate disposal of all infected animals.

The Board of Supervisors in each county determines by resolution the plan to be followed on area Bang's disease testing.

Mrs. Allan Millward, maternal grandmother of the little girl, has come from her home in Winnipeg, Canada, for a prolonged visit with the Anderbergs.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Garber, 28330 Aleyckay Road, vacationed in Spring Hill, Nova Scotia. They drove up, starting the 23rd of July and arrived home after a very pleasant time on August 5. The drive itself proved to be very enjoyable. The weather was comfortably warm and the scenery was beautiful.

A man should never be ashamed to own he has been in the wrong, which is but saying in other words that he is wiser today than he was yesterday.

Man, it's a thrill to hook a big one — feel him fight, dive and run. But what a disappointment when he gets away. It takes good tackle to get good fishing, that's why we stock the best!

By ED ALCHIN
Oakland County Agricultural Agent

With lower milk prices, dairy farmers are naturally looking for ways to cut costs on their farms. County agricultural agent, Ed Alchin has some information from C. R. Hogland, Michigan State College agricultural economist, on housing costs.

Under four major topics, the economist lists ways to lower costs. They are: improved forage production, more efficient housing, better work methods, and more efficient housing.

Housing, the last item, is an item which agent Alchin believes offers an opportunity for money saving.

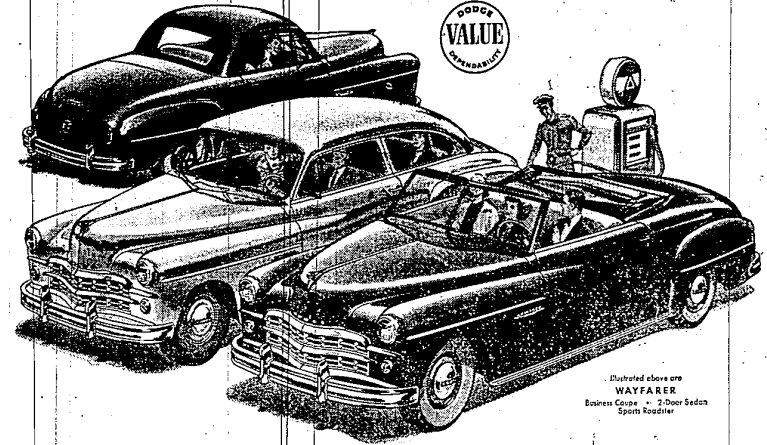

The cost of housing a dairy cow has averaged about $10 per year in recent years. This includes repairs, depreciation, and an interest charge on investment. This figure obtained from a study carried on the Detroit Milk Shed, is conservative, the economist points out, since very few barns have been built in recent years and repairs have been kept at a minimum. The inventory values of barns on the farms studied averaged about $3500 or slightly over $200 invested per cow.

New barns are costing from $100 to $300 per animal for the conventional stanchion barn. Pen-type milking parlor barns are often being constructed for less through the use of new building techniques. Some of the same new techniques which apply to the construction of pen-type barns can be adapted for stanchion barns. While a barn should be sturdy enough to stand weather and normal use, agent Alchin believes farmers should investigate the opportunities of using different construction methods or materials when building new or remodeling old barns. Money saved will mean just that, much less debt the cows must pay off.

H. J. Stafseth, head of the department of bacteriology and public health at Michigan State College, says a practical use for vaccination with the killed-trus is to protect broiler flocks when Newcastle is prevalent in the locality and the expense of vaccination is warranted. The immune period should carry them to market age.

HOW MUCH WOULD 'NO ADVERTISING' COST YOUR BUSINESS

Some businessmen look upon advertising as an expense — not an investment. When expenses must be cut, the advertising budget is first to come under the knife.

The trouble with that method is — It just won't work.

The fact overlooked is that newspaper advertising represents only a fractional part of the cost of goods sold.

Advertising is the instrument which brings the greatest returns when it is intelligently planned.

Advertising becomes expensive when you don't use enough.

It is like failing to lubricate a piece of valuable machinery. You save the cost of the lubrication, but eventually you have to pay the big repair bill — and production losses while the machinery is idle.

Advertise regularly in Farmington's hometown newspaper — Low advertising rates — High readership and pulling power.

The Enterprise goes into 1,983 homes each week — The Enterprise is read from front to back and top to bottom by every member of the family.
