GOOD EXAMPLES IMPORTANT TO CHILD'S DIET

When your child is learning to eat solid foods probably the hardest thing you have to do is keep from over-anxiety and urging. Think how you would feel if someone were to sit tense and anxious throughout your meals urging you to try this or that or to eat all of this or that.

Winston Osborn, home economist at Michigan State College, emphasizes the importance of a good example in getting your children to eat well-balanced meals.

Food dislikes have many sources but the earliest and most difficult to overcome are those acquired at the family dinner table. A recent study showed that 35 per cent of food dislikes could be traced to similar dislikes of members of the family. Children are the world's best imitators although at the same time they are going all out for individuality.

Young children tend to follow the example of older ones both at home and at school. So another influence you have to watch is that of your child's friends and schoolmates, the home economist states.

The old saying that forbidden fruit is always sweetest certainly applies to food habits. Much as we would like to remove the temptation of too many sweets from our children, it is unwise to make a definite issue of it since it often has the opposite effect, she reports.

The wisest solution to this problem is to build up good food habits from pre-school days — the right foods, regular meals, pleasant surroundings and sociability and good example. Miss Osborn believes the well-fed child has less inclination to go on sweet spree and a craving of sweets is often found in children whose total diets are poor.

Wonder how many Farmington residents remember the "good old days" when North Farmington was a village with a post office all its own? Two general stores faced each other at the corner of Farmington Road and Fourteen Mile and there was a blacksmith's shop a little further down the road. The store run by Mark Armstrong housed the post office and his brother was postmaster. At this time — around 1896 — there was also the Springbrook Cheese Factory on Drake Road between 13 and 14 Mile Roads.

If anyone is interested in providing a good home for a three-month old female puppy, whose mother is pure-bred springer spaniel, please call Longacre 5-3013. The dog can be had for the asking.

Miss Lee Ebersole of 21805 Bond Boulevard, entertained several of her friends at a very charming luncheon given Saturday, August 27. Among those present were Miss Pat Munro of Orchard Lake Road and Mrs. William Monaghi, who lives in Muir's Trailer Park with her husband and five-month-old daughter, Linda.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Munro, Dawn and Dick to most of us, now live in a home across from Glen Oaks Golf Course on Thirteen Mile Road.

The people who smile at you from behind the counters of Clark's Dairy Bar and Brown's Grocery on Orchard Lake Road gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Clark, proprietors of the Dairy Bar, for a corn roast. The roast was held on Thursday night, August 25. Everyone had a wonderful time stuffing himself with the customary ears of corn, hot dogs, potato chips, and so forth.

Mrs. Anor M. Hughes of 33234 Fourteen Mile Road, was hostess for a Stanley Breakfast Party held the morning of August 30. Prizes were won for the most original hair-do and various other games which were played. Mrs. Hughes served coffee and doughnuts to her guests.

PIANO SCHOOL STARTS

Wool carpets tend to increase in size slightly as the humidity rises. If a carpet or rug is to be attached to the floor it must be laid under tension, particularly if the weather is dry at the time. Otherwise it will expand when the weather becomes damp and the pickers will appear.
