Please Don't Kill . . .

my daughter. She is just a little girl who loves life and all that it holds. This is the thought of a little story recently presented over a Detroit Radio Station. But it's more than just a story, it's a plea from every parent, whether in Farmington, Detroit or anywhere else. It's personal and direct to every person that drives on our streets and roads.

Yes, she is just a little girl who wants and deserves a chance to live. Would you kill her? Of course not! But what about the children that are killed and injured every year? Accidents, yes, but many times they could have been avoided. Many times an alert driver can save a life.

Sure, she forgets — she may dart out in the street any minute. But if you will help — if you will remember — she will play again. If you forget, too, no, it may not be your fault, but do you want such a tragedy on your conscience? Do you want the experience of wondering if you could have saved a life? If you would have just slowed down a little as you neared that school crossing. If you had just been a little quicker.

It's just too late after it has happened. Please don't kill our children. Slow down, be alert, watch out when you approach a school. Stop behind our school buses when they stop and wait until the bus has started again.

They are our children and we want them to live, and we know you do, because they are your children, too.

Let's Quit Kidding . . .

ourselves — security doesn't grow on trees, not even in Washington.

The U. S. House of Representatives has just passed a bill increasing Social Security payments and in addition added a few more million to the eligible list. Now just who is kidding who? Figure out how much you and every other American will pay in. Figure out the cost in operating such an agency by the government. Who is kidding who?

Sure, it sounds good and the politicians know it. Security is a golden word, that pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. And we have become so conscious of the word that it is almost life itself. That is why even a faithful warning as to the direction we are going, a suggestion that security is an individual responsibility, not a mass directed one, is bowled over with a blast of scorn.

We have become so wrapped up in security that we have almost forgotten the straight line to individual success and national progress. As General Eisenhower stated several weeks ago to freshmen at Columbia University, "Grab opportunity, not security — live dangerously." In fact, he made some reference to the fact that the only secure place he knew of was in prison. Eisenhower is not a politician. He is used to speaking fact, and facing reality.

Security is important, but there is plenty in between. The "in between" that really insures security, unvarnished and uncoated. Individual initiative, desire to do a job, to build a better life, community and nation. Security depends on individual responsibility, aggressiveness and responsibility. The people are the government.

Waiting for the gravy train, bumping up the taxes, running further in debt, side-stepping individual responsibility, may make good soap box oratory but it doesn't spell anything. Let's quit kidding ourselves — security doesn't grow on trees, not even in Washington.

Unification . . .

of the Armed Forces got un-unified in a hurry last week.

The whole point is that unification can not be realized by act of Congress alone. It must be achieved by confidence and understanding on the part of leaders in all branches of the Armed Forces.

Many real cases of unification popped up during the war, with Army, Navy and Marines working together in a common objective. There was no breakdown of esprit de corps. But there was confidence, respect, understanding and, most important, a job to do.

Meanwhile the Headache Gets Worse

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

'A'WULF TOBACCO

British economic czar Sir Stafford Cripps and Foreign Minister Bevin attended a National Press Club luncheon while in Washington where Cripps, who controls Britain's economy with a vice-like grip, told in detail of British sacrifices of the dollar shortage.

"Just to give you an example of the sacrifices we are making," said Cripps, "my dear Mr. Bevin, I have given up tobacco as our part of the program to save dollars."

Whereupon Bevin, turning to his luncheon companion, whispered: "That's not the case at all. The fact is I gave up smoking because I couldn't stand the bloody awful tobacco Cripps has been buying."

Note — In order to save dollars the British have been partly shunning North Carolina tobacco and turning to their African colonies.

Nursery School for children over three. Everyone welcome.

This is the most controversial measure in President Truman's civil rights program. But the vote was blocked on a technicality by G. O. P. senator Donnell from the President's home state — Missouri. Atlantic Defense — The state department has called a highly secret meeting of the joint chiefs of staff of the 12 countries in the North Atlantic pact. They will meet in Washington.

Food for Democratic Countries — The food and agricultural branch of the United Nations is setting up an important organization to assist surplus American farm products to the undernourished countries of western Europe and India. The plan should benefit both American farmers and Democratic countries, and the experts claim they have worked out a plan to let the toughest problem in international trade — the dollar shortage.

SENATORIAL SPECULATOR
It looks as if Senator Thomas's speculating partner, Wyke Cullum, has diverse and widespread interests.

Last week it was revealed that Cullum, who frequently claims to represent Thomas, had bought 10 carloads of egg futures at the same time that the senator from Oklahoma had introduced legislation taking the support price off of eggs. Senator Thomas and Cullum have used a joint trading account on the commodity exchange in the past.

Now, in addition to eggs, it develops that Cullum has been pulling wires with the agriculture department regarding land. Cullum's influence in agricultural matters results from the fact that Thomas, as chairman of the senate agriculture committee, can block or pass most farm legislation.

Therefore, when Cullum, who helps the senator write legislation, demands inside information from the agriculture department, agriculture officials can't tell whether they are giving it for legislative purposes or for speculative purposes. Naturally, inside knowledge of government purchases and price supports could be used to make (Continued on Page Five)

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By GENE ALLEMAN

"The greatest change this year in Michigan educational pattern will come at the high school level," said Dr. Leo M. Thurston, state superintendent of public instruction, in an interview for the "Michigan Mirror."

Public schools are experiencing a boom. With $140 million of state aid to school districts and teacher retirement, Michigan public schools this year have more classrooms, more pupils, better paid teachers and more building construction.

In the opinion of Dr. Thurston, "lead man" for our school system, the new college agreement program for high schools is of most significance. Through this plan local high schools by agreement with colleges and universities of the state may modify their curriculum to more adequately fit the needs of students and yet permit these students to gain college entrance.

"Increased funds will also mean a substantial improvement in the vocational offerings," said Dr. Thurston. "There will be modern shop equipment, new business machines and typewriters for commercial training."

"Many schools will improve their training in agricultural and business education programs. There will be increased services to children in terms of counseling and guidance."

"This year will also witness an outstanding change in the offerings of junior colleges. Junior colleges of the state are modifying their program to meet the needs of youngsters who wish additional training but who do not intend to continue through college."

"High school boys and girls, who graduate at the age of 17 and 18, are finding it increasingly difficult to find work without additional technical training and maturity. Many of them will attend junior colleges with the idea of increasing their ability to make a living."

"In fact the junior colleges will

Church To Be Remodeled

$1500 will be raised for Methodist Church improvements. This is the sum that the members and friends of the Farmington Methodist Church have decided they can and will raise to completely renovate their church building. Already $1000 has been subscribed and they feel confident that a sufficient further number of their well wishers in Farmington and its vicinity will aid in the good work.

Otis Takes Commissioner's Post

Howard Otis, Farmington business man, will serve as a City Commissioner for the remainder of the present term. He was appointed member of the Farmington City Commission at their meeting Tuesday evening to fill the vacancy created when Howard M. Warner resigned as mayor and Leo C. Gildemeister moved into that office.

Plan Navy Day

Under the auspices of the Grosvenor Post, American Legion, plans are being completed for a Navy Day Program, to begin at 8:00 p.m. in the High School auditorium. All civic organizations will take part in the program, and the high school band, a speaker, and pictures of the war will be featured during the evening.

Star War Chest Solicitation
At a sectional campaign meeting for the 1944 Michigan United War Fund, held at the City Hall last Tuesday, plans were made for solicitation for this fund throughout the city and township. The meeting was called by E. W. Senbitt, Out-County chairman who appointed Frank Clark, Novi Township Chairman; Glen Everett, the Southfield Township Chairman, and Dick Taylor, Farmington Township chairman.

be serving as true community colleges which are a distinct break from the old academic type junior college which simply offered preparation for professional schools.

"These junior colleges will now offer courses in office management, medical technology, shop management, training as tool and die technicians, inspectors and testers of water supply, sanitary engineering, operators of small business and others."

"Adult education will also have increased emphasis since even adults are finding there are many technical changes in industry that require additional skills to continue their jobs."

"Schools will also give greater attention to safety education this year. Last year 215 schools trained some 20,000 high school youngsters to drive automobiles safely. It is expected by the end of this year that this number may reach 350,000."

"There will also be greater attention to fire safety in schools; school bus and inspection and training programs will be carried on in the 1949-50 school year."

"The Department emphasis pro-

"The Area Study Act as passed by the legislature gives the department and the citizens of the state the greatest opportunity in a generation to study the quality and quantity of Michigan education and the organization of its school district system."

"The citizens have already expressed their desires by a willingness to spend nearly one-quarter billion dollars for school operation, therefore there can only be one result — better schools for all the children of all the people."
