

DUO CONCERT organists, Ted Alan Worth and Andrew Crow, will give a concert in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Livonia, on Sunday, March 25.

Worth/Crowing About? Find Out March 25

The world's only duo concert organists, the Worth/Crow Duo, will play a concert in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, 2745 Five Mile, Livonia, at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, March 25. Tickets at $2 each are now on sale at the church office.

The duo (which chooses the motto "Worth/Crowing About!") will perform separate programs of popular and classical organ pieces and combine forces in a special section, arranged by Andrew Crow, for both organs together.

Ted Alan Worth, the classical organist of the duo, will illustrate the development of organ literature from Bach and Purcell to the 20th Century.

In addition to his brilliant playing and interesting commentary on the compositions, Worth is noted for his hilarious view of the organ world.

Crow then takes over with a demonstration of the theater organ and gives a musical picture of the development of this instrument. He accompanies a silent film featuring some of the funniest and -roll group in existence, and most famous stars.

Today (as Crow's After intermission, the arrangements of some very organists will play semi-classical and popular pieces, illustrate, the theater organ ending with their own is still very much a part of arrangement of "Harper musical life, being almost Valley PTA."
