Michigan Mirror

Charles M. Ziegler and State Treasurer D. Hale Brake.
Effective publicists adhere to the theory that one good news story is worth two signed editorials. Hence the perpetual quest to present the client's side in the news. Some of the best propaganda stories, however, are purely accidental — just lucky breaks. An illustration of this overnight fortune was the news story from Tucson, Arizona, about bankruptcy proceedings on the El Sigo Apartments. It seems that the state administration board invested $571,000 of the state's employees' retirement fund in this property. In order to save the mortgage, Attorney General Stephen Roth now is trying to get a receiver appointed. Score another for Williams and Roth.
If you jump to the conclusion that this column has become partisan, then scan this item: Governor Williams has changed strategy in his 1949 campaign for reelection. No longer does he try to put Republicans on the defensive for an anticipated $50,000,000 treasury deficit. Inflation's return to 1949 economy, plus a June 30 surplus of $24,357,130 in the state treasury, have combined to scale down the expected deficit. Treasurer D. Hale Brake has even asked the governor to "repudiate" the 4 per cent corporation tax in view of the improved financial outlook.
The federal government's $5 billion deficit makes Michigan look like a piker. Even a $25,000,000 Lansing deficit by June 30, 1950, would be peanuts by comparison. Who's worried about the big bad wolf, anyway? Not us chickens!
Quality requirements for production of new combat planes are so rigid that one company uses, on an average, one inspector for each 10 direct workers.
