Start Using New Greenhouse

Research scientists at the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station have already begun using much-needed space in the new greenhouse structures located on Farm Lane at Michigan State College.

Though completion of the more than 50,000 square feet under glass is scheduled for the near future, high priority research projects have begun. Plantings have been made so work will continue despite cold or weather.

Special construction features mark the research greenhouse structure. Artificial climates can be made with complete control of temperature, humidity and light. The research center is divided into individual houses which in turn are partitioned into compartments to facilitate experimentation.

Dean of Agriculture E. L. Anthony and Dr. C. M. Harding, director of the Experiment Station, state the greenhouse range as a vital addition to the station facilities. The $395,000 cost came from special appropriations of $355,000 made by the Michigan legislature at the request of the Michigan Agricultural Conference and assistance from the federal bureau of plant industry and the Farmers and Manufacturers Beet Sugar association, Saginaw.

Control of plant diseases and insects, higher yields, soil deficiencies, and new varieties are but a few of the problems to be studied. Space has been allocated so that various college departments can conduct work both independently and cooperatively.

Horticultural projects of a wide variety are planned. Trials are planned for foliage sprays on vegetables, fruits and flowers to determine whether many nutritive elements the plants need are soluble and can be absorbed through the leaves.

Other horticultural projects include celery and strawberry breeding, effects of growth regulators, and nutritive deficiencies of fruit trees. Special cooperative work has begun with the botany department on the problem of rose mildew and on leafhoppers transmitting aster yellows on carrots, celery, lettuce and other crops. New methods of insecticide application and control of insect pests of greenhouse crops will also be considered.

Soil work in the new research greenhouses will center on nutrient balance studies and methods of watering horticultural crops and minor element deficiencies in Michigan soils. Alfalfa soil problems.

JAYCEES INITIATE TWENTY-ONE NEW MEMBERS MONDAY

Twenty-one new members of the Farmington Junior Chamber of Commerce were formally initiated into the young men's organization at a special banquet Monday evening at the Lone Pine Inn.

George Frazer, past president of the Michigan Junior Chamber of Commerce, was the main speaker at the evening. He outlined the work of the local, state and national Junior Chamber of Commerce and the great strides they were making to improve their communities as well as the world. He challenged the members to aggressively attack the many problems now facing the world and collectively work out a solution. He stated that to do so in the past, much of the nation's leadership comes from the young men.

Gene Anderson, national director of the Michigan Jaycees, and Don Wilson, state vice-president, also gave short talks. Roy Erdman was toastmaster and Robert Metz, president of the Farmington Jaycees, introduced the main speaker.

The initiation climaxed a month-long membership drive by the Farmington Jaycees.

Stolen Car Used In Holdup Recovered

In one day a car belonging to Dr. M. E. Whitehead was stolen, used in a gas station robbery, chased by police, abandoned, and returned to the owner.

The car was reported missing at 10:15 p.m. Saturday. Later, the car was used in a gas station robbery when one of the thieves used a plastic pistol left in the car by Dr. Whitehead's son, Dean, to hold up the attendant at Ypsilanti. Belleville police found the car abandoned at 1:05 a.m. the next day. It was returned to the owner undamaged.
