A real Thanksgiving spirit can be mighty hard to muster in the face of sudden, unexpected death, and the passing of young Mrs. Russell Wack has cast a somber shadow over our entire neighborhood, which encompasses a great many of her relatives and the circle of friends made through her community activities. The home at 28427 Angling Road, has learned of the wide horizon this mother had found outside its walls, and of the many true friends she had earned. As one neighbor remarked, "I had known Ruth such a short time but feel I knew her well. Just a few weeks ago she told me of the great happiness she knew — her wonderful husband and four sweet children." To her that was her greatest wealth in the world. And luckily for her, it is the one and only kind of wealth that travels with her to the Bright Beyond.

A trip to Johnstown, Pennsylvania, last week end busied Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Coufflet and son Randall of 29033 List Street. His mother, Mrs. Lucy Coufflet, returned with them to spend the winter.

Mrs. Little Grode is glad to be back at 1594 Weyher this week after her stay in the hospital. Mrs. Grode received lacerations in an automobile accident near Grand

LOCALS

Mrs. William Taylor, from Toronto, Canada, was the guest of her aunt and uncle, the Fred Wilkins on Cora Street last week.

Mrs. William McCullough of Pink Avenue attended the Republican Women's meeting in Royal Oak on Friday afternoon. Mrs. McCullough gave an outline of the World Government question before the nation today. Mrs. George Campbell of Detroit, presented an article on taxation as it is at present.

Mrs. M. R. Brown and daughters, Linda and Susan Elaine, returned to their home in Lexington, Kentucky, following a visit with her parents, the Ralph Autens on Shawansee.

The Hospital Committee for the Blue Star Mothers were luncheon guests of Mrs. Merritt Meagher, in Northville, Tuesday and attended the hospital meeting, where plans were made for the Christmas party to be given at Maybury and East-lawn sanatoriums.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Grewing and children, and Donald McIntyre called on their parents, the Hugh McIntyres, Saturday evening.

lesson coming up. Mrs. Dennis hopes to learn to play also.

Across the street, the Carlyle Haight family will be passing turkey to their grandmother, Mrs. Anna Haight, and their two aunts, Misses Theresa and Pauline Haight of Lansing.

Carleton Harbor and son Robert came home smiling Sunday after a week of hunting near Rose City. Bob and his wife Donna are now living at the parents' home. And small son Tommy, too, of course.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold McCague, who now have an attractive stone front on their home at 29135 Scot-tien, did a bit of entertaining Tuesday evening. It was their son, Jack's 25th birthday and Mom remembered his favorite foods. Jack and his wife live in Detroit as do her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Smith, who were also at the dinner party. Jack's grandmother, Mrs. Charles Williamson, is visiting from Collingwood, Canada, so was in on the festivities.

Business and pleasure do mix when necessary, according to Russell Ellis, who has returned from a business trip in Wisconsin to his home on List Street for a brief stay. He received a Masonic degree in Detroit this week and then is hurrying back to complete his work in Wisconsin.

Trinity Lutheran Church in Berkey was the scene of the recent baptism of Paul Douglas Ristan. His aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Ulrich of Eight Mile Road were his proud sponsors.

Now that the gym floor is all polished and ship-shape, Clarenceville folks are starting their round of good times. Saturday night there's to be a dance, and it's open to all folks in this area who want to meet their neighbors and have a grand time. Funds raised by this and similar dances to be sponsored by the Clarenceville Recreation Commission will help launch a recreation program for the children next summer. Let's see you there!
