The store manager came over with a puzzled frown on his face, wondering why the customer found it necessary to handle his produce so thoroughly. "I've lost my key!" Mrs. Carlyle Haight of Drexel Road, told him. "Never pride yourself on a big stack of linen in the closet. You may have to lend it all at once some day."

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Smith moved the remainder of their household effects last week to their new home in Kalamazoo. Their former residence is now the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vesey, who have been doing a good deal of entertaining in their new home. Mrs. Vesey takes last minute parties in her stride. She sat in our living room at 5 p.m. Monday suddenly realizing she was having company for dinner that night. But she wasn't ruffled. Dinner was all home-frozen and waiting.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Munn of Scotland Street enjoyed a visit last week from their sister, Mrs. Jack Mackay of Sidney, Nova Scotia. Mrs. Mackay expects to be back in Sidney to spend Christmas with her husband after a three month's tour visiting relatives. Her first stop was at Lakeside, Ontario, to welcome her first grandchild and in Sidney to spend Christmas with her husband after a three month's tour visiting relatives. Her first stop was at Lakeside, Ontario, to welcome her first grandchild and in Sidney to spend Christmas with her husband after a three month's tour visiting relatives.

Well, for those of us who were stay-at-homes on Thanksgiving Day, the wonderful thick "comforter" of snow was a pleasure. Out on the sleds and Roosevelt Hill soon wore a fine polish. "It seemed like a real old-fashioned Thanksgiving" we've heard a lot of folks say, even though we know that the new-fangled Chanasta game was going full-guns in a good many parlors.

Mrs. Harry Shafter of List Street put on such a big feast that day she had to invite everyone back to the house on Sunday. Their son Gerald and wife were there with little Karen, who competed for attention with Linda and Sandra, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Wilker. Mrs. Wilker is the Shafter's daughter. Also praising the food were son Edward Shafter, his fiancée Miss Violet Minchett, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Minchett of Lincoln Park.

Mr. and Mrs. George Buchanan of 29239 Eight Mile Road with their neighbors, Mrs. Fred Westlake, Barbara, and Don, ate heartily at the home of Mrs. Buchanan's mother, Mrs. A. L. Greer of Schoolcraft Road. The Buchanans felt so hungry after the big feast they went "all out" in enjoying a tobogganing party this week end. The last we heard they were looking for a new kind of tonic — for aching limbs.

Harold Newman of 20834 Middlebelt Road is nursing a few aches himself. He had a tumble while doing carpentry work two weeks ago and cracked a rib. Mrs. Newman have their nice little white house on the hill for sale, and for our sakes . . . we hope they decide not to sell it. They are very nice neighbors and well-liked.

Those cooks who spent this year's Thanksgiving in their kitchens and decided to spend next year's at somebody else's table may consider their busy hours but leisure. Mrs. Robert Watwood of 21213 Middlebelt had no running water in her kitchen, and served a big dinner anyway. Because . . . she was being thankful about the new kitchen sink, and the fact that the plumber would be getting there one of these days.

Mrs. Watwood's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Wright, have just moved into their cozy apartment recently completed at the Watwood residence.

Mrs. J. N. Caultel of 29093 List Street is having her big sigh of thanksgiving this week. Her mother, Mrs. Hedwig Centala of Merrick Street in Detroit, has finally passed the danger point of pleural pneumonia.

"Mickey" Keller, 28822 Eight Mile Road, is still beaming thanks at Mom Anna Keller for the super-super theater party she staged in celebration of his ninth birthday November 19. Among the crowd were Russell Waack, Tommy Wilson, Billy Johnston, Bobby Brown, and Earl Bracken. A family dinner with sisters and grandmas there brought the day to a busy end.

Mrs. George Scanlan of Dresden Street paid highly for the gay time she had at the "Gay Nineties" party she attended last week end. When we talked to her Monday she was in the midst of a huge wash, 19 luncheon cloths to hang on the line. Lesson: "Never pride yourself on a big stack of linen in the closet. You may have to lend it all at once some day."
