ON A CLEAR DAY it would appear you can see forever from atop 825-foot Stone Mountain near Atlanta, Ga. A view of nature's wonders is often the focus of vacationers.

What Is A Vacation?

What is a vacation?
For some, it is the extended trip they have planned for a year; for others, a weekend jaunt to "the country." It may be spending time at a summer home, or taking a camping trip to a near-by state park or to the far-away West. It also may be time spent painting the house!

For school-aged youngsters, the whole summer is a vacation, from the minute the last school bell rings in June. Whether they go to camp, play Little League, swim, fish or jump rope, the three summer months are a much needed break from their school routines.

For high school and college students, vacation often means a summer hitchhiking through Europe, staying at hostels which serve the student visitors and seeing the sights and meeting the peoples who have only been in books and on paper previously.

Grandma and grandpa look forward to a visit with children and grandchildren, for with families often so widely separated these days, a vacation often is their only chance to spend time together.

Universally, a vacation is a time to defy routine, to do something different. It is also a time to grow from the sights we see, the people we meet and the things we do. It can be a time to be alone.

Rather than being an escape, it is a chance to fly in a new direction. Hopefully, we can come back refreshed and able to look at our lives with new ideas and new perspectives.

SUN AND SURF offer a chance to learn a new sport or improve your skill. Exercise and the great outdoors add to the vacationer's sense of well being, providing both an outlet for and a catalyst to his creative energies.
