Now We Know . . .

just how big Farmington really is officially, and the facts and figures make interesting reading. Since 1947 the City of Farmington has jumped from 1,619 to 2,312. If anyone had any idea that Farmington wasn't growing these facts should dispel it in a hurry. The city is growing and fast. Census figures on Farmington Township have not been released as yet but the story will be the same — huge growth in people and homes.

It is very significant that most of the increase in population in the city has come since 1947. A large portion of this growth is the result of the annexation of Floral Park. However, the entire city is growing with new developments springing up almost daily. This added to the fact that the city is operating on the largest budget in its history should give every citizen an idea of the tremendous problems ahead.

If the Farmington area is to maintain its identity, if it is to develop systematically, if it is to progress, the combined efforts and cooperation of everyone are going to be needed. Growing pains are not fun, but the satisfaction of maturity far outweighs the pain. Farmington presents a terrific challenge to its people. It can do what many other communities have failed to do — direct its own growth and development — not let its growth direct it.

The problem is ours, the organizations, the individuals of Farmington. It is up to all of us to solve it.

Tighter Enforcement . . .

of the Township Health Code has been called for by Thomas Tardy, sanitary engineer.

This is constructive action that should be met and approved by the residents of the township. It is designed for one purpose and one only — the health and safety of all the people. The health code was approved by the majority of the electors voting — and it is law.

Healthful conditions can hardly be construed as restraint or restriction. It is protection, not only for you, but for your neighbors. Since the majority approved the health code, they approved also the active, considerate enforcement of the code. The township has the organization and the instrument for building a safe, healthy community and, as Tardy recommended, it should be used. Not as a restriction but as protection.

The people, the Township Board, and the appointed health officers must work cooperatively in an effort to see that the purposes of the code are realized. A closer liaison is needed between these three groups if conditions are to be improved. The code was born out of a need for better health and sanitary conditions. They can only be made better by using the code, and enforcing its provisions. Again, not just to control an individual or restrict a few, but to protect the majority.

Saved By The Bell . . .

just before it went through the ropes. That was the decision in Congress as the expiring draft law raced for its life last week.

It is hard to understand why the race for the deadline in the first place. None of us, whether in Congress or out, like to think of arms, draft or war. But none of us can overlook the importance of preparedness. It can save lives instead of take them should an emergency arise. It should be of first importance, not last.

Some have fought the draft because of their firm belief in peace. Some have accused the military of seeking gains. If having no draft law would insure peace, everyone would favor its abolishment, but unfortunately it is just the opposite. A strong, well-prepared citizenry is everyone's gain, not just one group.

Being prepared militarily as well as economically, is insurance, not aggression towards conflict. The indifference displayed prior to the last war is proof enough of that. The interruption caused by the draft on the youth of the nation is minor compared to the long, trying, costly years of fighting back from military unpreparedness after the first shock of war.

Every American prays that war may never strike again, but come or not we must be prepared.

AMERASIA CASE

OF GO
Jim McInerney, the assistant attorney general, was testifying in secret before the Tydings committee regarding the stolen documents in the Amerasia case.

McInerney, now in charge of the justice department's criminal division, handled the Amerasia prosecution when he had a lower position in the justice department five years ago. And the man who cross-examined him, senate committee counsel Ed Morgan, once worked in the FBI as a top expert on Communists. They knew each other well.

"Jim," asked Morgan, "did anyone ever bring any pressure on you regarding these people who were indicted in the Amerasia case?"

"Yes," replied McInerney. Republican senators pricked up their ears. This was just what they had been looking for. The Scripps-Howard newspaper chain, now sued for libel by one of the Amerasia exiles, has been claiming that political pressure caused the justice department to drop the case.

"Where did the pressure come from?" continued Morgan.

"The White House," replied McInerney.

Republican senators were all smiles. Democratic senators looked worried.

"Who in the White House," pressed Morgan.

"The President," said the tight-lipped McInerney, apparently not willing to volunteer anything unless asked.

"What did the President say?" asked Morgan. By this time both Democrat and Republican senators were almost holding their breath.

"The President called me on the phone," said McInerney, "and said, 'Don't let anything stop you from sending those B—s to jail.'"

The senators relaxed. The Republicans looked disappointed. But they knew if for no other reason than because they were familiar with the President's multi-colored language, that McInerney was telling the truth.

WHY CASE WAS DROPPED
The real story of why McInerney could not carry out the President's orders is now fairly well understood — namely, because OSS and FBI men searches the Amerasia office and Emmanuel Larrin's apartment without a warrant.

BIBLE COMMENT
FOR JULY 2

Jesus Spoke of Troublous Times In the Future

ANXIETY and speculation have marked every generation of Christians since the very beginning of Christianity itself.

It would be difficult to enumerate all the times that "end of the world" has been predicted, and the number of times that those who had it all worked out in their sure interpretations of prophecy have been shown to be false interpreters.

Jesus spoke of troublous times ahead; He warned the disciples not to put too much confidence in "signs" and to be wary of false messiahs.

So far as nation rising against nation is concerned, the two great World Wars of the past might fall into that category; but there have been many wars and tumults since Jesus spoke those words, and some of them were on a world-wide scale as the world was at that time.

Was Jesus predicting some definite day of catastrophe? Or was He speaking in general terms of the struggle between good and evil?

Whatever the future, the one sure thing is that Christians can not be prepared for it unless they are always prepared. It is those who endure to the end that are saved, but the lesson of endurance is not learned at the end.

It would be better for us, and better for others, if we were to heed the plain teaching of Jesus, and strive to follow His example in word and in deed, instead of spending time and energy speculating about doubtful matters.

The world is undergoing a certain degree of turmoil today. The future is uncertain. We know not what may befall us, or what the world of tomorrow may be like. But the word of the Lord shall not pass away. There is our place of anchorage and faith. Hold fast to God's word, and do our duty. That He best prepare for whatever is to come.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

INTERPRETING THE NEWS

By GENE ALLEMAN

From now until November election day, Michigan bi-partisan government will be somewhat of a farce. The governor's efficient press secretary, Paul Weber, is preparing a constant line of attack to run down Republican claims and to promote Williams' campaign for re-election. You may safely expect plenty of righteous and angry statements from both sides. Remember, 1950 is an election year.

After vetoing the $10,380 Louis Kunkin salary from the civil service budget, Governor G. Mennen Williams staged a friendly rescue act for the civil service commission's full constitutional allowance. He vetoed a legislative act of $40,500, explaining that the state constitution required one per cent of the state salary total for maintenance of the civil service department. The $40,500 reduction would have been unconstitutional, said Williams. The commission had previously agreed to the cut.

The governor signed the legislature's $271,000,000 omnibus appropriation bill quite reluctantly. He said he was forced to sign it to prevent "financial chaos" although the amount was $70,000,000 less than he asked for and $14,000,000 less than the current year's total. Williams is disputing Republican claims of economy, while legislative leaders are pointing to the record as a real achievement — the first check on rising government expenditures since 1933.

Operations and payrolls of Michigan's mental hospitals will have to be trimmed after July 1, according to Charles F. Wagg, state mental health director. New vacancies will remain unfilled to the extent of 200 to 250 jobs. While cutting $1,575,000 from the hospital budget, the legislature added $100,000 to hire additional psychiatrists and adjust pay of those already in service.

Legislative bills to remedy so-called waste of public funds in welfare administration were permitted by Governor Williams to become law without his signature. The senate committee on social aid and welfare, headed by Colon Smith, reported January 12 that "millions of dollars have been wasted" due to lax administration, especially in Detroit. The state puts up 50 cents of each relief dollar expended. The "do not let anything stop you from sending those B—s to jail." The senators relaxed. The Republicans looked disappointed. But they knew if for no other reason than because they were familiar with the President's multi-colored language, that McInerney was telling the truth.

Stewart-Woodfill, president of Mackinac Island's Grand Hotel, offers this bit of convincing logic why a bridge should be built at the Straits: Assuming that no federal aid should be used, the bridge would pay for itself on the $1,000,000 annual loss to the state due to ferry operation deficit, depreciation of ferry and dock equipment, absenteeism on invested funds lost to the state. In 1949 the ferry fleet lost $613,500. This amount, (Continued on Page Eight)

Looking Back Through The Enterprise Files

FORTY YEARS AGO (July 1, 1910)

Bad Accident
Harry L. Weaver, accompanied by his father, Harrison Weaver, were trying out a new horse just purchased by the former, Wednesday afternoon, and when near J. H. Johnson's, the team became frightened at an automobile and in an attempt to manage them the father was thrown over the dashboard and badly hurt. Three ribs were broken and he was otherwise bruised.

County Roads System

State Highway Commissioner E. A. Ely says the upper peninsula is leading the state in the making of good roads. All but two of the upper peninsula counties are under a county system of road making and the results obtained prove that this plan is far in advance of the township idea.

School Set For Elections

School Board members in eight school districts in the Farmington area will seek re-election at the annual school elections to be held July 8. Following the elections, the school districts will hold individual meetings at their respective school buildings to discuss school business and to elect officers.

To Select Supervisor Monday

Selection of a Supervisor of Farmington Township to succeed Arthur P. Coe is expected Monday evening at a special meeting of the Township Board. Justice Ernest Blanchard, a member of the Board and former Supervisor Isaac Bond are mentioned for the post, which it is reported Clerk Harry McGracken could have if he would accept.

State Troopers Recruit Volunteers

Men from 17 to 55 years of age are being recruited up to July 1 for Michigan State Troops, Co. K, 31st Infantry Regiment, Plaquette Armory. They wish to build the company to full strength in order to take part in maneuvers and camping in Grayling for one week.

Conservation Directors To Be Named

Persons who occupy land lying within the boundaries of the Oakland County Soil Conservation District are asked to vote at an election to be held Friday, July 6, between the hours of 7:00 and 9:00 p.m., Central War Time, for the purpose of nominating three directors for the District.
