POLIO PRECAUTIONS

RECOMMENDED BY THE NATIONAL FOUNDATION FOR INFANTILE PARALYSIS

WHEN POLIO IS AROUND, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis recommends these simple precautions: Keep children with their own friends and away from people they have not been with. Right along. Don't become exhausted through work or hard play. Don't stay too long in cold water or sit around in wet clothes. And Don't stay too long before eating. Watch for feverishness, sore throat, headache, upset stomach or more muscles. They may—or may not—mean polio. Call your doctor and then, if help is needed, contact the National Foundation Chapter in your area.

Home Demonstration Program Gets New Leader Effective September 1

Michigan's home demonstration program, with its membership of more than 40,000 homemakers, will be headed by a new state home demonstration leader, effective September 1. Mrs. Leona MacLeod has been appointed to the Michigan State College Cooperative Extension Service post by the State Board of Agriculture.

Mrs. MacLeod will transfer from her present position as assistant professor of textiles, clothing and related arts in the School of Home Economics to fill the vacancy created by the previous resignation of Rachel Markwell.

Since her first appointment at MSC in 1934, Mrs. MacLeod has worked with the home demonstration program for 11 years. She was Oakland County home demonstration agent for four years and extension clothing specialist for seven years. In 1945 she transferred to her present position. Previous to her MSC career she had taught in the Monroe High School for two years, had been a buyer in large department stores in Grand Rapids and Detroit for two years, and had been assistant personal manager at the J. L. Hudson company, Detroit.

Mrs. MacLeod holds a B.S. degree from MSC, a master's degree from Simmons College, Boston, and membership in several professional organizations.

The State Board also has appointed Beatrice Frangquist as an assistant state home demonstration leader.

GIVES MODERN TIPS FOR MIDST OF "SANDWICH SEASON"

Most homemakers have had plenty of experience in making favorite American food, sandwiches, but a few modern tips about them are a timely now that we are in the midst of "sandwich season".

Ruth Ingalls, Michigan State College home economist, believes that a few suggestions may help your efficiency in sandwich-making. Did you know that day-old bread is easier to cut and spread, and that bread chilled in the refrigerator gives the same results?

Butter will spread easier if it is first softened. You can do this, of course, by leaving it when temperature for awhile. Or you can cut it in large chunks, put it in a bowl, and cover it with warm water. Then you work it with a fork until the butter is soft and drain off the water. You can also use the trick of putting the butter in a hot bowl and then mashing it with a fork.

You can keep sandwiches moist even if you have to make them ahead of time. Wrap each sandwich in waxed paper. Then wrap all of them in a damp paper towel all of them in the refrigerator. Sandwiches can be made the night before and frozen if the filling is one which can stand freezing. Why thaw them out, they taste exactly as if they had been freshly made.

Variety in bread and in the fillings make sandwich eating more enjoyable. Search for different breads or rolls at your grocery store and for new fillings in your cookbook.

If the sandwich is to be the main part of the meal, think of its nutritive value and include eggs, peanut butter, meat, but also remember the many fruit and vegetable fillings.

EVAPORATED MILK CONTAINS DOUBLE MILK NUTRIENTS

Have you discovered the advantages of keeping evaporated milk handy in your kitchen? And do you know that evaporated milk contains the important milk nutrients — but in double the original amounts?

Evaporated milk is cow's milk with some of the water removed, explains Lola Jackson, Michigan State College home economist. Nothing is added to it and in order to make it just like, cow's milk again, just add an equal amount of water.

Evaporated milk is sometimes used in infant feeding according to a doctor's formula. It also lends itself well for cooking. Creamed mixtures may be made from evaporated milk. Cream of tomato soup and cheese sauces can be stirred up with the undiluted product. For ordinary cream sauce, use the evaporated milk diluted with an equal amount of water.

You can include more milk in the diet by cooking cereal in milk. Use two cups of water, plus two cups of evaporated milk plus one teaspoon of salt for two cups of flaked cereal such as rolled oats, or for one cup of granular cereals.

Field Tests To Control Anomala Beetle Ended

Field tests with new insecticides, aimed at controlling the anomala beetle which attacks jack and red pine, have ended at the conservation department's Higgins Lake forest but no definite answers as to the effectiveness of the experiment are expected for at least a year. Anomala beetle-infested pine are prevalent throughout the north central lower peninsula.

First observations indicate destruction of 90 to 95 per cent of the beetles clinging to jack and red pine in a selected 50-acre state forest tract where spraying was conducted. However, foresters and entomologists quickly point out such results are preliminary.

Prepare the same way as for any cooked people like evaporated milk in coffee. Also, evaporated milk can be whipped if it is first thoroughly chilled. A good idea is to chill the beater and bowl, too. This whipped milk can be used in frozen foods and fruit whips, or for topping for desserts.

Cans of evaporated milk are convenient for anyone who has to travel and carry a supply of milk for children. It is also a handy item for an emergency shelf.

ceeding checks are necessary to determine the value of the solutions in curbing this pest-destroying pest.

The spraying crew experimented on small strips with insecticides known as chlordane, dieldrin and "1189". These new insect killers have not previously been tried on the anomala beetle. Balance of the 50-acre tract was sprayed with a concentrated DDT preparation.

The anomala beetle stages a two-way attack on the trees. The larvae damage the roots while the adults chew on the pine needles. Young pine stock in the 10 to 20 year old range appear to be most susceptible to the ravages of the hungry beetles.

Large pine plantings were made on federal and state forest lands in the 1930's. This means a lot of young trees in the age range susceptible to insect infestations, says Norman Smith, department forester.

Tests with these insecticides, limited to the one 50-acre tract, mark the start of the department's cooperative forest insect and disease control program. Ground work for the joint program recently was laid at regional meetings conducted by the department's forestry division.

Working with Smith on this particular project are Daniel Benjamin of the U. S. Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine.

IT'S A GIRL!

Mr. and Mrs. James Shaugnessy, 2785 Violet, have announced the birth of a daughter, Suzanne Marie, at Providence Hospital July 23. Suzanne weighed seven pounds, two ounces. Her mother is first grade teacher at the 10 Mile Road elementary school.

Dr. Walter Morosky, associate professor of entomology at Michigan State College and H. V. Borgerson, conservation department district forester.

Tentative plans to spray by airplane in the Presque Isle state forest have been cancelled since the latter part of the red-headed pine sawfly, is disappearing. Foresters note a decline in sawfly numbers in this forest a year ago and latest checks reveal only minor infestations still present.

Due to natural controls, many insects and disease outbreaks die out before they do much damage.

Our Family Is Growing — Join It!

By Bob Kettler

Sometimes back we got us a new fountain pen, just to be able to write this column whenever the mood struck us. A lawyer friend, always helpful, told us how to avoid losing the pen to borrowers who had acquired the habit of absent-mindedly sticking the gadget in their pocket and walking off. "Only the writer can do it," he told us. "Keep the cap and they'll have to return the rest." Maybe he isn't such a good lawyer, we'll write this in pencil.

We sort of wish it wasn't quite so much of a seller's market these days. No one gives us a chance to fully expound the many fine features of our 1950 Studebaker. "You got one?" they say. "We'll take it even when we tell them they got one." They wait a couple of weeks, they take it. Frustrating, that's what it is. However, we're pretty sure the factory is going to keep right on making Studebakers, so we'll keep right on delivering them to you. But sort of fool around a bit when you come in, won't you? Just to keep our salesmen on their toes.

Despite the finger of scorn pointed at the back-seat driver, after last Sunday's traffic we sort of got the idea that perhaps it would be a good thing if an extra speedometer and an emergency brake were installed back there.

Did we tell you of the director of an all girl glee club. Seems they were having a bit of trouble with the ending of a certain religious selection. The girls tried again and again to properly execute the "Amen" at the end of the hymn. "What so hard about it?" the director asked. "All you have to do is stop 'Amen' so much and hold your 'men' longer."

By the way, when did you change the oil in your car last? The hot August sun, plus the heat of the motor can do things to oil that's been around too long. Best bet of the week is to bring the oil in for some brand new oil and a bit of lubrication, so you can take the balance of the hot weather without fear of motor break-down.

We've been told that food prices are going out of sight again. Maybe that's all to the good. Those prices scared us half to death the last time they were where we could see them.
