There's No Holiday . . .

when it comes to community spirit and progress. It is a responsibility of every resident and it's a 365 day-a-year job. Now that the primary election is over, Farmington has a new job to do. It is of vital importance to every citizen of the city. In November the voters must decide whether they want to change the City Charter to make way for City Manager type of government. But it isn't as easy as that, and although November may seem a long ways away, there is much to be done. First, the public must know the facts in order to act intelligently. This issue must be clear-cut and devoid of side issues. This is an important challenge to every service and civic organization in the community. The Enterprise will publish a series of informative articles on the organization and function of city manager government. However, emphasis can and must be added through Farmington's service organizations, not only as information for its own members but for all voters in the community. This is a golden opportunity for service and community action. It is up to every organization in the city to accept the challenge. The program must be objective if it is to be effective and accomplish the goal. Farmington is growing and with growth will come other proposals for change. Here is an opportunity to establish a plan of information which can be used again to serve the people. Let's not take a holiday - let's collectively reach the goal we seek - that of presenting the facts so clearly that every voter will know what he or she is voting for before the election, not afterward. Service knows no holiday.

Suspenders Are In Style . . .

in Washington these days. At least that is the way it seems down here in the grass roots. The government has either hidden or given away any belts that may be laying around. The quick change has come about since the "tighten your belt" campaign got under way. They apparently don't want to get caught in the squeeze. Every man, woman and child is being asked to take another hitch in the old belt to help finance the war in Korea. This is little enough to ask when American soldiers are giving their lives. We must see this effort against world aggression through to a peaceful conclusion. We can and must pay as we go if we are to secure a sound national economy. But where are the belts in Washington? What about taking up a notch on non-essential government? If the people are to sacrifice - the government must sacrifice also. But it would appear, by some strange coincidence, that belts have become scarce in Washington. At least, we don't hear anything about cuts in governmental expenditures for non-essentials out this way. There haven't been any great reductions in payrolls. We haven't heard of word about cutting parties or releasing controls of farm products. Things have been more than quiet regarding further action on the findings of the Government Re-Organization Committee. There have been no slashing of non-military bureaus and sub-bureaus. There just isn't a belt to be found - only suspenders with plenty of snap. One little tug on the Washington belt line would go a long way towards reaching the objective we all are seeking. Economy at home will not only insure our security against communism in the future, but will help to save lives on the fighting front now. Economy at home means tightening the belt in government administration as well as the millions of belts belonging to all Americans. And suspenders - style or not - are not the answer.

Bachelors . . .

The rail unions served notice last week that they weren't interested in a compromise on their wage demands. It must be they are all bachelors - or they would know by now that the success of a happy home is giving a little while taking a little. It's just an old family custom.

Triple-Threat Song and Dance Team

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

ALLIANCE PLOT
Right-wing Republicans and Democrats are secretly plotting a political alliance to capture control of Congress by 1952, then to take over the electoral college - key to the presidency. We have documentary proof of this daring plan, which already has the secret backing of nationally known conservatives.
To break the plan calls for Republicans and southern Democrats to join forces without changing party affiliations. However, they would merge their seniority and run congress jointly. Then the next step would be to organize a similar coalition to dominate the electoral college and name a conservative president.
The ringleader of this amazing plot is a stocky, ruddy-faced, North Carolinian, named J. Harvie Williams. Though comparatively unknown, he claims to have the support of such GOP leaders as Senators Karl Mundt of South Dakota and John Bricker of Ohio, Congressman Charlie Halleck of Indiana and Frederic Conard of New York; also such southern stalwarts as Senators Harry Byrd of Virginia and Dick Russell of Georgia, Congressman Gene Cox of Georgia, and District governor-elect James F. Byrnes of South Carolina.
PAINTSTAKING PLAN
Williams has set forth his so-called "political realignment" plan in painstaking detail in a series of "writely confidential" memoranda, which are also marked: "Please do not discuss outside sympathetic circles."
"His plan for political realignment is a simple one," he writes, "it involves nothing more than a formal alliance between Republicans and southern Democrats in the senate, in the house and in the electoral college."
Of the 54 senators in the Republican-southern bloc, Williams calculates that three southerners and seven Republican senators would refuse to join the alliance. This would still leave a majority of 54 seats to 42. In the house, he expects to lose 21 Republicans and 13 southerners, giving the coalition control of the house by a 240 to 192 margin.
Williams explains: "In 1952, this realignment would create a new party, but without the necessity." (Continued on Page Five)

BIBLE COMMENT

Jesus Saw Man at His Best and Worst And Said, 'Beware'

AMONG the saddest words ever spoken by Jesus were these: "Beware of man." Spoken before His disciples, these words are, unfortunately, justified by the tragic realism of life and history. And Jesus was right.
During the quiet, peaceful years of Victorian optimism, with its amiable view of man, and its altruistic benevolence, we would have considered it inconceivable that in 20th century civilization we could live in fear of one another.
Jesus knew better. The ancient world had its own Hitlers and Stalins. He foresaw the possibility of power-driven dictators playing off one nation against another. He prophesied, with a remarkable accuracy, that the world would be plunged into a world of blood and carnage. He said, "Jesus was not despairing. He said, 'How much is a man better than a sheep?' And He compared lost and fallen man to a lost sheep, declaring that 'the good shepherd' would find the missing member of his flock than the 99 sheep safely in the fold.
This is realism tinged with optimistic faith. For man at his best is good, and there is plenty of evidence of the goodness of man. It is a comforting thought that Jesus considered man capable of doing the good things of which we are so proud. He gave His very life to redeem his fellowmen.
The recollection of His sacrifice makes it profoundly necessary for us to see man as Jesus did, both at his worst and best. By taking in the good things of the human life, we can better recognize false philosophies and wrong purposes.
The sad words of Jesus, "Beware of man," might well serve as a warning to those comfortable and well-fed idealists who view the doings of the evil world through rose-colored glasses.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By GENE ALLEMAN

A democracy must take time out, even from war, to govern itself. Michigan voters went to the polls this Tuesday to pick party nominees for Congress and for governor and lieutenant governor. At Washington the House and Senate were busy with re-reading of the Constitution. "Politics as usual" is a periodical requirement in a democracy. That's why politics replaced the war headlines for a day this week.

Can Governor Williams, the Democratic nominee, who enough "protest votes" from disgruntled Republicans to win re-election. That's the new question being asked this week at the Capital City in the wake of primary returns. Remember - Republican protests against Kim Sigler put "Scapp" into office two years ago.

Michigan again has become the nation's No. 1 "hot spot" for inflation. Like a force being a long chain reaction of pay boosts in the automobile industry. Chrysler, Packard, Ford, Motor Wheel and other firms jumped on the band wagon. Economists call it the "fifth round". After each previous round, prices have gone up. Consumers are paid more. In this case soaring prices preceded the adjustment in pay.

J. A. Livingston, business expert, says: "Inflation, like a force being fanned by a favorable wind, has a head start on President Truman, Congress and the Federal Reserve Board - so much so that the problem is not how to put the fire out but where and how to prepare a line beyond which the onrushing of rising wages, prices and hoarding shall not pass."

Indicative of the current trend: Consumer credit in July reached an all-time peak of $20,540,000,000, up $600,000,000. Installment credit accounted for $12,600,000,000 of the total and $500,000,000 of the increase. People just had to get their autos, refrigerators and washing machines - items bought on credit - quickly, before the boarders did.

Charles F. Brannan, secretary of agriculture, has told Michigan potato growers to accept his new rules or they'll get no price supports. He told Pennsylvanians the same thing. The vote there was 1,091 to 293 against new rules. Michigan growers will vote on the issue September 20 - 25.

Michigan legislators went home for a short time (some two weeks) after a three-day session in which they appropriated $362,925 for civilian defense, and promised to return to dig up funds for a living blood bank to combat a possible atomic disaster.

And while Korean casualty lists crowd front pages in Michigan, Donald S. Leonard, acting civilian defense director, says this state has taken the lead in preparations for defense at home. "The money and the laws are now available." (Continued on Page Eight)

Looking Back Through The Enterprise Files

Change in Firm
Harrison Johnson, who is well known in this vicinity, has purchased an interest in the grocery business formerly conducted by L. C. Schroeder in Farmington. The new firm intends to enlarge the present stock and carry a more complete line of goods than heretofore and will merit your patronage. Success to the new firm.
FORTY YEARS AGO (September 16, 1910)
New Building
Ground was broken Wednesday for Fred M. Warner's new cement building, 25 by 40 feet, on his lot west of Henry Lee's store. The basement will be used for storage, the first floor will be utilized for offices by the Fred M. Warner Cheese Company, and the second floor will consist of a five room flat to be used for living rooms. This building will add materially to the appearance of Grand River Avenue.

TEN YEARS AGO (September 12, 1940)
Novi Fruit Company Opens
The Fruit Sales Agency of Novi announces that they will begin fall and winter grading operations on Monday, September 16. The company plans to carry out apple juice canning operations much more extensively this year than last fall and will handle 60,000 crates for apple juice alone. A new feature will be the distribution of small, five-cent cans of apple juice. New, fancy corrugated boxes have been ordered for the packing of apples. Sixty employees will be hired for the fall and winter operations.
Enrollment May Reach 425
Total enrollment in Farmington High School will probably reach 425, according to estimates by Superintendent of Schools Orville E. Danckel. By Thursday morning the enrollment in the four grades was up to 414 and more registrations are expected during the next few days.

FIVE YEARS AGO (September 12, 1945)
Enrollment Shows Increase
All schools in the Farmington Township System enrolled pupils for a full day session last Tuesday with a slightly higher enrollment than last year. West Farmington School had an enrollment of 33 and others in the district are as follows: Fairview, 22; German School, 35; Wm. Grace School, 115; Noble School, 134; Bond School, 168; Farmington, 362; Farmington Junior High, 172; Farmington High School, 420, making a grand total of 1471.
