

ROLLING DOWN THE RIVER

By Bob Kettler

Follow me now dropped in this Studebaker mart of ours and after admiring the finest car of the 32 section... Studebaker of course... told us that the neighbors in his area were a bit in doubt as to his mental status. His small car, entered in a bit of war in Korea during the afternoon, had used various guns, planes and tanks. So come evening, his friends were treated to a sight of him pushing a lawn mower through the snow drifts and had no way of knowing that said lawn mower had swept, during the day, as a Sherman tank.

Well, things like that happen, but there's absolutely nothing on wheels that can substitute for this ever-reliable, amazingly powerful, style-leading 1952 Studebaker with its miracle V8 engine. We've a brand new modern line that is the most graceful of all "hard-top" convertibles. Then, too, if you're in an economical frame of mind, there is the Studebaker Champion with so many extra miles per gallon of gasoline the average filling station will become part of the scenery instead of a necessary stopping place.

We don't know how we got on the subject, but the matter of washing dishes entered the conversation while we were indulging in a bit of lite chat with a lady whose car was in for a bit of tune-up. She told us that her ten-year-old wouldn't permit some guests to help stack the dishes after a recent dinner. In the daughter's own words, "If you stack them, you've got to wash the dishes, too!"

Remarkable foresight in a ten-year-old, we figure, and we hope that you good customers will show some of the same in this matter of keeping the oils and other lubricants in your car at a proper degree of freshness. It's most necessary, as we keep reminding you, if you want a car that will give maximum service winter. Maybe a tune-up wouldn't hurt either, if you've neglected that particular phase of good motoring lately.

That's that, but a fellow we know, while reading a magazine recently, paused a certain amount to tell his Aunt that that was what he would like for his birthday. So the lady, being of the frankish turn of mind, sent him a note reading, "Here is what you wanted, Dear." And carefully wrapped in a device carton were four roses, frozen in a cake of ice.

Yours,

Camera Club Makes Field Trip

The Farmington High Camera Club took a field trip to the Detroit News Saturday, January 12. The group, accompanied by Mr. Benjamin, went on a tour of the building. They saw the editorial, composing and photography rooms and many other interesting sections. Many of the students enjoyed watching the linotype machine in operation and seeing the presses run. The group left Farmington High at 11:30 a.m. and returned at 2:00 p.m. N. G.

FACULTY BEATS SENIORS 32 - 24 IN ANNUAL GAME

Before an overflow crowd in the Farmington High gym last Saturday night, the faculty defeated the Seniors 32 to 24 in the annual Senior Faculty game. Led by Mr. Picho and Mr. Burch, who scored 15 and ten points respectively, the faculty ran an early lead and although trailing at the half approached, led 15 to 12 at half time. In the second half the faculty removed all doubt of the seniors being them by scoring 17 quick points. From there the faculty coasted in with a hard-earned victory.

Gino Carnevale led the scoring for the Seniors with seven points followed by Norm Raupp with five. Something extra was added this year. Besides having five faculty members dressed up as cheerleaders, the Seniors also had cheerleaders. E. Staley, D. Goodrich, C. Dryden, D. Brady, A. Corbit and G. Dilling were dressed up like girls in short skirts and put on a hilarious show. A dance followed the game. J. M.

A LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

Dear Sir: In the past few issues of your paper, there has been a good deal of material pro and con about the Student Council. As I am one of the students of this school, I feel I have a right to make known my feelings on the matter. To state, if I would like to point out another instance where a group of people were dissatisfied with their form of government.

When the United States broke away from England in 1776, it was governed by the weak Articles of Confederation. A time came when they found the Articles were not good enough to hold them.

Did the statesmen and leaders of the time say "Let's throw away our government and let England rule us again?" No, they changed their form of government. They drew up the Constitution which governs us to this day.

And in the case of the court, the teachers once had complete control of the school. The idea of class officers stopped a little of it. Then came the Student Council. This body helped govern the students, set new laws for them, was elected by them.

But they found that like our national government, they needed a judicial branch. Students would not obey the law just for the sake of keeping it.

Thus the need developed for a judicial branch of government. The result was the Student Court. It may not be perfect, it may not run right at all, but does that mean we should throw it out and work back to rule by the teachers? Of course not.

What is the answer then? Revisit the court, make it part of the school government as it should be. And though there is bad in the court, remember that there is more good - remember it when people say "throw out the court!" Respectfully yours, Bill Kingsley.

SHOULD SCHOOLS TEACH MORALS? Approximately one-third of a child's day is spent in school. If the only responsibility of a school was to give instruction in reading, writing and arithmetic, too many students would probably graduate from school emotionally immature and completely misadjusted. Parents should teach their children ethics; however, a great number of them fail miserably in attempting to inform them of the difference of right and wrong in human behavior. By the time a child begins school his pattern of life is usually set, but during the first few years of school an impressive teacher can still have a great effect upon the child's manner of living.

A good teacher can inform a youth of many significant qualities that are not demonstrated in the home. Schools often require and acquire respect from students than the average parent does. Children are taught to get along with others and to have a good understanding of people. Some parents are prejudiced themselves and therefore back the intelligence to teach their children to oppose racial, political and religious discrimination. There are many parents who are

FRESHMEN DEFEAT HIGHLAND PARK FOR THIRD WIN

Playing one of their better games, Farmington's Freshmen defeated the Highland Park team 20-18 January 10. Ronald Donaghe was high point man, scoring half of the Farmington total. B. Stumbaugh netted 5 points, J. Rice 4 and B. Shopoff 1.

Brotherhood Theme Of Scheduled Assembly

To bring Brotherhood Week to the attention of the Farmington High students, the speech and history departments have planned an assembly for February 20. A movie is scheduled to open the program. Afterwards there will be a panel discussion in which six students, C. Gardner, S. DeLong, E. McCracken, A. McFarland, W. Sutherland and W. Knepper will take part. Mr. Maattala and Mr. Shopoff are faculty advisers for the project. E. M.

Talent Show To Be Given If Enough Participate

Farmington High's Talent Show will be given February 16, if enough students plan to participate. Names of interested performers were taken by student council members when they gave their reports in the classes last week. The total number of persons has not yet been determined.

If there are not enough who wish to take part in the Talent Show, the Student Council will have to find some other way to select participants for the Inter-Lakes Talent Assemblies scheduled for various schools during January, February and March. The Inter-Lakes Talent Assembly will be held here Wednesday, February 27. R. C.
