

Nackers Celebrate Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary

A reception celebrating the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nacker of Farmington Road was held in Adams Hall Sunday, April 6. One hundred and fifty relatives and friends were guests.

Albert Nacker and Lucy Hess were married April 9, 1902. The ceremony was performed in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hess of Waterford Center, Oakland County. Rev. John K. MacGillivray was the officiating minister. Attendants were Mrs. Carrie Glasgow of Graham of Leslie, Michigan, and George Nacker of Livonia. Both were present at last Sunday's celebration.

For many years the Nackers have been residents of Livonia. At one time they lived on a farm at Seven Mile near Inkster Road. They moved to their present home at 15644 Farmington Road in 1925. They have one daughter.

New Blouses in Stunning Colors Herald Spring

Striped tissue chambray has billowing push-up sleeves.

White ribbed batiste has long-pointed collar with black tie.

Paris-inspired silk taffeta shantung has keyhole neckline.

Silk taffeta shantung features neckline in pointed petals.

BY EDNA MILES

NEWS in the nylon, billowing sleeves, garden colors—these are the characteristics of spring blouses.

The Gibson Girl look, so important for spring, is easily achieved through the addition of a blouse or two to your wardrobe. These might be in tissue chambray with billowing, push-up sleeves, high neckline and fluffy ruffles. Or, you've a choice of similar silhouettes in plaid, candy stripes or printed glazed cotton.

Nylon, essential to any blouse wardrobe, turns up in new guises this year. Nylon linen, nylon shantung, nylon batiste, ribbed nylon pique, yarn-dyed checked nylon tricet—all of these have miraculous nylon's wonderful properties. Among the blouses designed for Judy Bond's spring collection is a group of silk taffeta shantungs, inspired by Parisian imports. Modestly priced, these are in the soft, iced pastels and in the vivid colors such as purple, too. Pleats and tucks are prominent in both tailored and dressy styles. Tucks are sometimes accented with lace, ric-rac or cording and braiding.

The delicate colors—pinks, lilacs, pale blues and maizes are best loved for these blouses. But the perennial and now-classic white makes a strong showing, too.

Scout News

Intermediate Girl Scout Troop 174 is having a bake sale Saturday, April 26, at Zehnder's Market. Proceeds will be used to help pay camp expenses at Camp Harris in May. Twenty-one of the girls attended a flower show on Thursday, April 3. The Scouts enjoyed the "Pied Piper of Hamelin" Thursday, April 10, at the high school gymnasium. March 28 fifteen of the Scouts went swimming at the YMCA in Highland Park.

Intermediate Girl Scout Troop 174 attended the Flower Show on Saturday, April 5. Nineteen girls and five adults attended. The girls started their Mothers' Day projects.

In Tween-Hi 77, eight Scouts are working on their child care badge with Mrs. J. H. Tabb. As one of the requirements, they are to visit a nursery. The girls made a trip to the Evangelical Home on Outer Drive and Coyle on Monday, April 14. They presented the children there with a quilt and stuffed toys they had made. On April 18 the girls will have an April outing in the form of a bike hike. Mrs. Lee Taggart and Mrs. E. Baldwin are sponsoring the trip from the Baptist Church to the Evangelical Home on Jefferson. Mrs. Charity Crooks, who is a trained nurse, is teaching the fundamentals of nursing to ten of the Scouts in compliance with requirements for the home nurse badge. They are meeting on Mondays.

Executive meeting of the Farmington Girl Scouts was held Tuesday, April 8, at the home of Mrs. George Nabaloff on Ten Mile Road. Order books have been given to the Troop for the Girl Scout cookie sale. A delivery day for the cookies will be in May.

To Attend AAUW Conference

More than 500 women from five Mid-Western states will gather in Grand Rapids April 25 and 26 for the regional conference of the American Association of University Women. It has been announced by Mrs. Ralph B. Alsop, Cincinnati, Ohio, regional vice-president of the organization.

Theme for the conference sessions will be "Our Responsibilities in the World of Today." Headline speakers will include Dr. Harlan Hatch, president of the University of Michigan; Dr. Ira Corning, professor of sociology and anthropology at Scripps College, Nashville, Tennessee; and chairman of the National Social Studies Committee of the A.A.U.W., Miss Christine Helms, a member of AAUW's national staff in Washington, specializing in childhood education; and Mrs. Alsop.

Several members of the Farmington Branch are planning to attend the conference. Mrs. Clarence Stoll, local branch president is included as one of the personnel resource persons in the administrative seminars of the program. Two series of group discussions, or workshops, will also be held during the conference. One series will deal with the special interests of the association and the second will be concerned with problems of local organization and operation.

AAUW is a national organization of more than 150,000 women who are organized in some 1,200 communities in every state in the union. It had its beginning in 1881 in a group of 17 young women who were then pioneers in college education for women. Throughout its history, AAUW has maintained its special interest in education and its applications to the present-day world. Today the organization has programs of study and action in education, international relations, social studies, arts and the economic and legal status of women. The AAUW also supports a unique program of fellowships and grants for women scholars from all parts of the world.

The five states represented at the regional conference in Grand Rapids will be Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin. In addition to the program from the entire region, each of the five states will hold a separate convention for the purpose of electing officers and conducting other business. Mrs. A. L. Brandon of Ann Arbor, president of the Michigan division of AAUW, will be in charge of the Michigan convention.

Japanese Studies Give Better Understanding

Better understanding of Japan and the Japanese is part of the program of the University of Michigan's Center for Japanese Studies.

American students are trained in many aspects of Japanese civilization. Then, for additional graduate study, they spend a year to eighteen months at the center's field station in Okayama, Hiroshima, main Japanese island.

Most of the expense of the station is covered by grants from the Carnegie Corporation and other private endowment foundations.
