"that the person nominated by the Republicans is so diametrically opposed to the administration's foreign and domestic policies that you think he would not serve the best interests of the country, and assuming further that the Democratic press a desire to nominate you as the best exponent of our foreign and domestic policies, would you agree to reconsider your decision not to run and accept a draft?"

KOJE ISLAND
Inside facts in the continuing prisoner crisis on Kojima Island are not too mysterious. First they bolt down to the natural desire of U. S. military men to handle prisoners with as little manpower as possible.

There has always been American policy. The best U. S. troops are saved for the front.

As a result, South Koreans were largely used for policing Kojima Island. They operated under a relative handful of Americans, and, since it was impossible to escape from the island, nobody worried very much about what happened, including the fact that there was considerable fraternization between the two groups.
