Savings, how-ever, should be accomplished se-lectively without jeopardizing the procurement and production of essential military hard goods, espe-cially aircraft. To save dollars in this field at the sacrifice of neces-sary air power will be foolhardy." Continuing, the report declares,

There are compelling reasons for this particular time. We are still living in the days when the United States can determine its own destiny. But those days are numbered, and the numbers may not be in very great-magnitude. Should we withhold this report until a later date, it will be of no interest to anyone except the historians of the future, seeking to interpret the facts of this decade. Unless our leaders and wisely in the present, it is only; too possible that the interpretations will be made from the Soviet point of view."

SAYING MINERS' LIVES

mountain boar whentriled, and he was plenty riled when his committee vetoed his efforts to delay action on a new mine-safety bill to prevent tragic coal-mine disasters. Barden had been placidly sitting on this important measure for two months and he was all set for delaying action there. He wanted his committee to hold prolonged hearings, even though bearings. We have though the committee of the same of the sam

However, when committee colleagues saw through this little scheme, and voted $0.5 to terminate the hearings after three days, Barden was fit to be tied. In a red-faced race, he growled at colleagues who dared oppose him:

"You've made your decision and I'll abide by it, but it's a bad decision. We have a lot of witnesses who have not been heard on this important question. You are denying them that I'ght. You want to run the suffered with the country of the control of the

IKE - TAFT SHOWDOWN

With the big Chleago showdown between Taft and Elsenhower coming up next week the political pundits are having a hard time maklegi up their minds who will win out in the neck-and-neck race.

Despite all the conflicting iffering, the secret tallies show a marking mot 540 first ballots for Taft, $221 for Elsenhower. But IKe shows 521 for Eisenhower. But Ike shows more reserve strength. Whether these figures will hold up against transportation workers, construction the tremendous, last-minute pressures and undercurrents is another question.
