strange bedfellows. But in each committee there are dominant groups. They'll lead their names to the proposed amendments and make it a little easier to follow the game without a program.

The CIO sparks the Representative Government committee; the Farm Bureau and mutual insurance companies are the dynamo for the Balanced Legislature group.

Briefly, the CIO amendment would set up legislative representation on a strictly population basis.

The farm - business amendment would keep the Senate on an area-representation basis and divide the House on population lines.

Opponents say the CIO proposal would give Wayne, Oakland and Genesee Counties, with their huge industrial unions, dominance over the whole state.

Anti-farm-business factions contend that that plan gives representation to "beans and cherries trees instead of people."

Just what will happen if both proposals get an affirmative vote is something that can kick up an argument as fast as the assertion that Freddy Hutchinson is a better baseball manager than Red Rolfe.

There has never been a similar case in Michigan history so there is no clear-cut precedent. Attorney General Frank G. Millard (officially) intends to wait until he gets to the bridge before crossing it. But unofficially he's looking at the roadmaps — books in his law library — for a rough idea of where the highway might cross the river come November.

Common sense might lead to the assumption that if both amendments do carry the one with the greatest majority would be in effect. But common sense and the strict letter of the law don't always coincide and every "I" has to be dotted and every "U" crossed before an amendment gets hem-stitched onto the Constitution.

As one State House newsman puts it, "We, the people, will probably have to go to the Supreme Court to tell us what our votes say we intend."

The only bright spot in the whole snafu is the consolation it could have been worse. The A F of L and a Detroit teacher's organization scrapped their plans to enter an amendment proposal of their own.

Had they come into the tournament, we might have wound up with four amendments!

Whether Gov. Williams enjoyed the spirited GOP convention last week as much as he'll enjoy the Democratic powwow next week is problematical.

But it's timing couldn't have been any better for him.

Pre-occupation of Michigan delegates with the big Chicago fracas took their minds off another golden opportunity to unleash their big caliber guns against the governor. . . . the second riot at Jackson Prison.

Actually it didn't begin to compare with the vicious and costly one this Spring. But coming in the dog-days news slump, it would have made black headlines (and ideal oratorical black powder) if it off the top of the page one.

The Gov. can thank the Chicago convention for deceiving that one off his political trail.

How's Business?

THIS is—to coin a phrase—a "shopper's market."

Folks are taking a keen look at what they get for what they pay—and they're taking a double look at price tags.

That's the kind of market where Buick really shines.

Do you know why?

Buick prices are down within easy reach of the folks who buy what's known as "the low-priced three."

Fact is—a big chunk of Buick sales comes from the folks who trade in one of this low-priced trio.

For very few extra dollars, they're getting a lot more automobile.

They're getting more power—and the thrill that goes with it.

They're getting "big-car" comfort. They're getting a ride that cost a million dollars and more to develop.

They like the room, the fabrics, the extra appointments they find in the smart-stepping beauty pictured here. And they like Dynaflow Drive.*

They like the way it handles. They like the way it's engineered. They like the belt they get out of touching off the power of its Fireball 8 Engine—and they like the miles they get from a gallon of fuel.

So Buick sales are booming. Not just the SPECIAL—but also the SUPER and ROADMASTER. Folks find that each one is the buy in its field.

When we tell you that business is great, we can back up that statement with figures. More people are buying Buicks than any other car at their price or above.

Why don't you come in and see for yourself what's behind this popularity?

If you can afford a new car, you can be the proud owner of a Buick.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.

FARMINGTON, MICHIGAN

William Canfield, age 76, recalls for Ed Alchin, County Agent, how much harder farm work was before electricity came along. Today, electric power saves time and labor. . . . boosts production and profits.

Warm Milk

HELPS HEAT MILK HOUSE

Electric pump attached to milk cooler does the trick

William Canfield, Oakland County farmer, uses an electric heat pump in connection with his modern front-opening milk cooler. Taking heat from warm milk and well water, it keeps the milk house comfortable in freezing weather.

Mr. Canfield and son, John, farm 160 acres, most of which are devoted to seed corn. They use electricity where ever possible. It powers corn drying, ventilating, conveying, and elevating equipment. It operates water heaters in the milk house and home, providing him and his family with plenty of hot water to make speedy work of dairy and household chores.

Is electricity doing all it can for you? For further information, see your Edison Farm Service Advisor.
