It's Our Opinion

A Constructive Suggestion . . . from a reader is almost like a letter from home

we like to get them and we like to try and carry out the desires expressed wherever and whenever possible

we like to get them and we like to try and carry out the desires expressed wherever and whenever possible. Such a suggestion came across our desk last week and we appreciate getting it. The suggestion pertained to the publishing of information on present candidates running for public office. This reader, like many others, is interested in getting the facts about each candidate in order to make an honest and intelligent decision on election day. We, too, are interested in supplying this information.

The Enterprise has, on several occasions, published background material on candidates for city, school and county offices. We, in turn, received several letters requesting information on how the various local candidates stood on specific issues. Thus an attempt was made to get an expression from the candidates. The majority declined to comment except to infer that we were trying to "put them on the spot". Thus the readers were denied the information and we were bluntly criticized.

However, we do not intend to stop trying, because

However, we do not intend to stop trying, because we feel that the voters are entitled to this information. Intelligent voting is the keystone to good govtion. Intelligent voting is the keysonic to good good ermment and it must be encouraged at every turn. It should be a challenge to every candidate as well as to every information media. They, too, have an obligation to perform. Such information must be factual and non-partisan in content, not just another political handout.

In response to the suggestion, we are publishing on this page the first in a series of articles devoted to research and education in government. These articles are prepared by the Oakland Citizens League and Civic Research, Pontiac, a non-partisan, non-proti organization. We hope later in the month to have similar sketches of the various candidates.

We ask only one thing, and that is that every reader study the issues and candidates before they go to the polls. Take an interest in your government, demand the facts and above all else, vote on November 4!

presented itself last week in Washington when Russian Ambassador George Zarubin read a few prepared remarks about the efforts of the Reds to "maintain friendly relations with the United States".

"maintain friendly relations with the United States".

The interesting part of the picture was that Zarubin was able to keep a straight face all through the affair. He has either never heard or has long forgotten the saying about action speaking louder than words. While Zarubin was droning out his "love message" in Washington, his comrades were blasting forth with their "hate messages" in Moscow. In Communist language, that makes sense. . . good sense.

Zarubin might have made the whole thing more amusing if he had laughed heartily a few times during the course of his remarks. But instead he stuck right to the communist script, without as much as a faint sneer. This is double talk on the highest level, and unfortunately it has snared quite a few who saw only the actor's face.

the actor's face.

Citizens of the United States hear many words, they are free in this country, and they have a way of pinning them to their speaker. They expect the words to mean something... to become a reality. Mr. Zarubin has spoken to the American people as a leading representative of the Soviet Union. He has spoken of friendship... and the American neople are repulving. friendship . . . and the American people are replying, "Let's see it!"

Yes, Mr. Zarubin, in the United States actions speak louder than words!

You Have A Choice . . .

but you will have to make a decision now. You can sit back and let George and Mary do it . . . or you can get in there and fight!

get in there and fight!

What are we talking about? Something that you have heard over and over again . . registering and voting. Oh that! Yes, just that . . the most important obligation we as Americans have. On Monday, October 6, at 8:00 p.m. the registration books will close as far as the coming General Election is concerned. Will your name be in them?

Will you he a grander for domestic at the content of the content of

Will you be a crusader for democracy? Will you be a fighter for the American way of life?
