THE MICHIGAN MIRROR

By GENE ALLEMAN

means that the younger generations are predominant in the other three groups and that the friendship of youngsters will soon become even more important as the elders die off.

"The new rural community is just like a new frontier," explains Miller, "It's growing and it does not know what it's growing into. It will take time for its character to crystallize."

"When a man moves out into the country and buys three or five or ten acres, that land goes out of farm production. Will that eventually mean we'll have too little land to grow the crops we need?"

"That question was put to Miller. 'I think that the natural balance between man's needs and the land that supplies them will prevent this from happening,' he replied."

"But I do think that rural townships would do well to begin at once with zoning plans. I'm not an expert, but I feel that too many township zoning plans are the work of an attorney and an engineer instead of a reflection of what the people themselves want. 'So citizens of every community ought to get together and thresh out this problem.'"

Michigan has fewer farms and less cultivated land now than in the past 30 years.

The U. S. Census of Agriculture for Michigan has just been released. It shows that there are now 155,582 farms in the state. In 1920 there were 196,447.

The number of farms under ten acres increased by a third in that period. Farms under three acres increased 500%.

Right now 47.3% of all Michigan's land is farmland; in 1920 it was 51.7%.

The average age of Michigan farmers is 49.9 years.

Over 20% of all farmers in the state worked at least 100 days in a factory last year.

As Miller points out, "There is no typical American farmer any more. The farmer isn't the straw-hatted hayseeded cartoonist depicted him as. He's to be a good businessman, a mechanic, a marketing expert, a chemist and a biologist. And he has to be a vital member of the new rural committee forming in Michigan. For everyone has a stake in the soil, no one can live off dead land."

If your attic is a typical one, you periodically rid of some of this worthless stuff we're keeping."

That's just what the State of Michigan is doing. Millions of records clog State offices and 40% are kept for no reason at all.

So, following legislation passed on recommendation of the Little Hoover Commission, conservation and civil service agencies threw out 23 useless and obsolete forms and saved $15,850 annually. Simplifying birth records in the department of health eliminated five typists and $49,275 annual expenses.

Thirty per cent of all records in the departments of administration and conservation were found valueless and their destruction approved. Savings: $7,000 yearly.

When paperwork controls have been put in effect on the 14,000 different forms used by all 114 state agencies, the Little Hoover group estimates savings will reach $800,000 annually and that when a centralized records center is established the yearly economy will reach the million dollar mark.

ART EXHIBIT NOW SHOWING AT CRANBROOK

Painting and sculpture from all parts of the country are included in the second Cranbrook Alumni Exhibition to be on view at the Museum of Cranbrook Academy of Art from Tuesday, October 21, through Sunday, November 23. Open daily except Monday from 2 until 5, the Museum has assembled over 100 art works by 64 artists as the second step in its policy of showing items in different art fields each year. Last year weaving, ceramics and metalwork were shown, and plans are being made for an architecture and design exhibition next year.

Area Students Study In Upper Peninsula

Word has been received from V. J. Gingerich, public relations officer, that the following students are enrolled at Sault Branch of Michigan College of Mining and Technology:

John Kytola, sophomore student in mechanical engineering; Kytola holds a Michigan High School scholarship.

Allen Schweitzer, freshman liberal arts student.

Raymond Sherman, A. N., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Hosner of Edmondton, is spending his 30-day furlough from the U. S. S. Boxer after a six year enlistment in the U. S. Navy on the Pacific. Raymond attended school here in Farmington until his enlistment in the Navy in 1947.

Age forms no block to popularity of hunting. Conservation department records show 37,228 youngsters under 18 years of age after a six year re-enlistment in the U. S. Navy on the Pacific. Raymond attended school here in Farmington until his enlistment in the Navy in 1947.

FARMINGTON G. I. RECEIVES TRAINING IN 'COPTER SERVICE

Pfc. Herman F. Schult, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman E. Schult of 20321 Shadydale, is learning how to work with the Army helicopter in Korea.

He has been participating in the 25th Infantry Division's training program designed to train foot soldiers in how to clear and mark landing sites, indicate wind directions, mark hazards and assist the helicopter pilots in loading and unloading the crafts.

Helicopters in Korea have been invaluable in evacuating wounded directly to the hospital and in transporting supplies to isolated areas of the front lines.

Schult, who entered the Army in April, 1951, is a truck driver in the 93rd Field Artillery Battalion. He has served in Korea since April of this year.

RECEIVES DISCHARGE

S.S.C. David Hopkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hopkins on Lakeway, returned home Friday from Camp Custer with his honorable discharge after serving in the 45th Division. His mother, Mrs. Ralph Hopkins, has served as president of Farmington Blue Star Mothers of America Chapter 49 and president of the Farmington V. F. W. Auxiliary.

Alger Urges Lower Costs, Not More Tax

Fred Alger insists that lower costs of government — not higher taxes — are the answer to Michigan's present financial crisis.

"The State of Michigan, like you and me, can go broke too. And the State will go broke if it keeps on spending more than it takes in," Alger insists.

U. P. DEER KILL
The number of deer killed by hunters each year in the upper peninsula has increased rather steadily since 1930, as the population continues its upward swing. About 15,000 were shot in 1950 while hunters took a computed 36,000 last year.

Farmers choosing between red and white winter wheat should check their elevator to avoid mixtures in one community.
