has been spoken by the citizens of the Farmington community and a resounding word it is. Never before in the history of Farmington City and Township have so many crossed the thresholds of the polling places. For months Farmington citizens have listened and read the millions of words written and spoken by the various candidates for public office. They have quietly sat by, thinking, drawing conclusions, making up their minds, waiting to get in the last and final word. That chance came Tuesday and the final word was a booming shout heard from one end of this nation to the other. Though some candidates won while others lost, Tuesday was a great victory for our democracy. It proved without a shadow of a doubt that Americans recognize and respect their rights and are ready to defend and strengthen them as only free men and women can!
