WINTER DRIVING CAUTION URGED FOR HOLIDAYS

Accident rates go up when the sun goes down, cautions a University of Michigan traffic authority.

This is doubly true of the Christmas holiday when more persons than ever are driving at night and the weather is most apt to be bad, says Professor John C. Kohl, director of the U-M Traffic Institute.

Here's what he advises for safety: Take your time. Christmas is here, but, if you are careless, it may never come again for you.

Dim your lights when approaching or passing other cars. Don't walk along highways at night. Dark clothes and general darkness form an accident-producing combination. If you must, carry a light and be sure to walk against traffic.

Don't drink if you're going to drive.
