Support The Community Center

EDITORIAL

Children's activities, classes for both adults and children and a place for many organizations to meet are all offered by the center.

The center isn't self-supporting. Neither is it tax supported.

Although most of the income for the center is from class fees, they are not enough to finance the $127,000 annual budget.

Community Center Plans Spring Fun

FARMINGTON The Farmington Community Center will chalk up a first with a trip to the Detroit Institute of Arts for parents and youngsters from the third grade and up for a guided introduction to the museum.

Children sometimes go to the institute with school groups, but this will be an opportunity for parents and young people to enjoy the museum together.

A bus will leave the center Saturday, May 19, at 9 a.m. and early reservations are required. Cost will be $2.25 per person.

Spring is reflected in two courses soon to begin at the center.

Mary Gerathy, national authority on herbs will start a five-session class May 9 on planting an herb garden, cultivating it and using its flavors and fragrances.

Those without the ambition to start a garden can learn how to enjoy purchased herbs.

Two center benefits upcoming are a children's show, "The Polka Dotted Dragon's Tale," by the Farmington Players and "Tricks of the Trade," a fashion show luncheon for women who sew.

The children's play will be given in Harrison High auditorium on May 12. It is designed for four to 11-year-olds, but children of all ages enjoy it. Performances will be at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. and admission is $1.

Irene MacKinnon's fashion show will be held in the Center May 18 and May 23. Tickets are $1. Tickets for both the play and fashion show are available at the center.

Three workshops in needlepoint also will begin at the center in May. Needlepoint I starts May 3 and Needlepoint II on May 24, with Carol Keeney and Lynn Malpeli directing. Marilyn Doyle will teach needlepoint finishing in a workshop that begins May 22.
