

Ever try to furnish a room without any walls?

You may find yourself doing it this summer, for everywhere the new life style is to live outdoors as much as possible--beside the pool, on sun-deck or patio. Wherever you plan your summer recreation spot, think of it as an all-purpose room open to sky and to the great outdoors.

Then think of it the way you would any living area, choosing furnishings according to the activities. Will they mainly center around a pool, with fun and games for everybody in the family from the school crowd on up? Or do you visualize a spot for fishing quietly, serving social snacks and long tall drinks, or watching the sun sink over the horizon...?

BEFORE YOU RUSH OUT to "furnish" your vacation outdoor living area, it is a good thing to get with it on what you really want. Read a few magazines for ideas and suggestions, and take a little time to shop around the home furnishings stores before you make up your mind.

There are so many kinds of outdoor furniture to choose from, it is easy to get bogged down between the rugged massiveness of redwood and the traditional scrolls of wrought iron or aluminum. But, whatever you do don't end up buying cheap, light make-do pieces because you see them at the roadside stand and you're pretty desperate by then with all that gang coming over next weekend.

There's really no need to get trapped like that when manufacturers have developed affordable furniture especially for the many faces of today's outdoor living. Molded from sturdy plastic, this new casual furniture has real durability and all the permanence one could want. What's more it has the kind of modern good looks that will send your friends into gales of admiration before they even find out how comfortable it is.

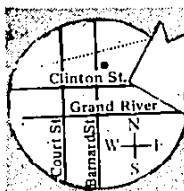

Of course, it's up to you whether you mention how modestly priced the furniture really is, but you'll find it hard not to brag about how care-free the pieces are, how they stand up in sun and shade, wipe clean and refuse to fade. And how those colorful floral cushions are backed by waterproof vinyl so they don't have to be rushed under cover at the first drop of rain.

IN FACT THE CHAISES, which tilt up at either end for comfortable lounging, can be used without the cushions at all. The molded open grids of the seats are ideal for drying out well-dunked swimmers.

To help you set up your outdoor room, you have a choice of tables in either the white to match the seating or in four other colors.

If any killjoy looks at your beautifully arranged outdoor "living room" and asks where you are going to store all that furniture come winter, you can just smile knowingly. By the turn of a few screws, each piece packs down flat, and a whole roomful stores in closet or garage.
