Editorial

Another year is ended. The curtain draws closed on the trials and tribulations of another year. We, in the Journalism class, began the year with new ideas and aims. Some we accomplished and others we will leave to next year's class to complete. We have weathered our share of late assignments, uncovered information, shortages of typists and all the other things that can go wrong when 20 active persons gather together and endeavor to print a newspaper.

This year has not been just filled with sorrows. Many good times were enjoyed by the class. In October the charter members welcomed five new members into Quill and Scroll and initiated them with a candlelight dinner. May saw an additional three members added to the society, and we leave this year with a total of 13 members now in our chapter of the Quill and Scroll society.

Christmas came and found the Journalism class busily buying and decorating a tree in honor of the season. Presents were heaped under the tree and at a Christmas party exchanged between members of the class.

Throughout this year we have tried to edit a newspaper that the students would enjoy and one that also would be informative and educational. We have written stories to be printed in The Farmington Enterprise and the chapter is hoping they would be appreciated by our readers. All in all, this year each member of our class has done his best to contribute to a better newspaper, and as editor, would like to thank them and wish them luck in the year to follow. N. M.

Senior Highlights

Here we are in the space ship Galaxy. Who is that behind the controls? He's fooling around with all the electrical gadgets. Look at the spark fly! He's coming closer, he looks like a man from Mars with that space suit on. He looks kind of familiar, what's that on his sleeve? Why, it's a big red "C". This could stand for Clarenceville, could it?

We will have to investigate this little man and see who he is. He's turning the space music box on. It only plays one song, "Don't Let the Stars Get In Your Eyes". Oh, well, it must be a favorite. He seems to be doing a little redecorating in his ship, he's painting the walls royal blue, another favorite. "Hungry? Well, come on and we'll join in on a playful bit of chess and mental. Here come some of his friends to join him, Darrell Ashley, Tim Burger, Dean Baker and Howard Goers. Each of them have brought him a bouquet of roses which he is putting in vases. Ahhh, such a pleasant aroma.

His shipmates watch him as he makes a great decision. To be a man or a mouse, that is the question. If he removes his mask he will no longer be a child but a man. He hesitates, slowly his hand moves to his face and off comes the mask. Ahh, a man at last!

Yes Gads! It's Dennis (The Menace) Wilcox, born in Detroit on October 31, 1934. When he's not fooling around in his space ship he's usually taking a cruise in his dad's car or is putting in his favorite sports are basketball and baseball. Shop is his favorite class and his most embarrassing moment was when a girl leaned on his shoulder. His ambition, which he has already mastered, is to grow up to be a man.

There he goes, off into space to live a happy life. G. E.
