Lawn Lunch Time Helps Grass Grow

Even though it may seem just a short time since spring fertilizer was applied, the grass may need another booster now.

If your grass isn't dark green and growing rapidly, one pound of 12-6-6 or 10-6-4 per 100 square feet will help, according to James Tyson, a Michigan State College soil science specialist in turf grasses.

He advises applying fertilizer evenly over an area of 200 to 500 square feet at a time. The grass should be watered immediately after application of the fertilizer to prevent burning.

If the lawn is shady, Tyson recommends that the fertilizer should be added once a month during the growing season. Here are some of his other recommendations:

Mowing is important to good lawn care. If you have a one-inch lawn, it shouldn't grow to more than one and a half inches before it is mowed.

Kentucky bluegrass and red fescue lawns should be kept at about one and one-half inches on sunny lawns and from two to three inches in shady areas.

Water grass only when it needs it. Water when the leaves are slightly wilted and one good soaking is enough until the grass starts wilting again.

The Neighborhood Bible School will hold Children's Day services at 11 a.m. Sunday, June 28.

was a huge success. The committees worked hard to make the party a success. Approximately 200 people took part in the activities. The Farm Bureau cleared over $300 for their gift to help fight polio.
