POLIO PRECAUTIONS OUTLINED BY MEDIC AT U-M HOSPITAL

Although a few simple precautions are suggested to keep children safe from polio, parents are urged not to become hysterical and thus overly restrict their youngsters' activities.

Danger is greatest if there is a lot of polio in the community, says Dr. David G. Dickinson, medical director of the Respiratory Center at University Hospital in Ann Arbor. No month or time of day is most dangerous, because the disease does not follow a pattern of this kind, he states.

Three measures for avoiding polio are recommended by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

1. Don't let children become exhausted, and make sure that they get plenty of rest.

2. Severe chilling, such as blueprints from swimming for a long period of time, should be prevented.

3. Public places like wading pools and carnivals should be avoided. "It is not a good idea to expose children to new playmates every day," Dr. Dickinson said, "but it is foolish to keep them away from their own circle of friends."

The early signs of polio are non-specific, and it is often impossible to diagnose the disease definitely in its early stages, he declared.

Sore throat, fever, headache and stiff stomach are all part of the symptoms of patients later found to have polio. These are also the symptoms of many other diseases, he pointed out, and the only really useful thing to do is put a child to bed for any kind of sickness and call a doctor.

Mrs. Edna McShane of Eleven Mile Road was the Thursday evening guest of Mrs. Grace Simpson of Mayfield Avenue.

Vacation Camp Now At Pine Lake

Girls' Friendly Society's non-profit vacation camp on Pine Lake in Oakland County is beckoning holiday-minded girls, big and small, from all over Michigan.

First groups of this year's young campers converged on Birds Nest Cottage (for 5 to 11-year-old girls) and Holiday House, for 12 to 16 years) Saturday, June 27. Reservations are still being taken, however, for one or two weeks or more. The beautiful 100-acre camp on the shore of Pine Lake is administered by the Girls' Friendly Holiday House Committee, at a moderate cost to girl campers.

The season continues until August 22 at Birds Nest and Holiday House. Rest Cottage, the third vacation house, is open until November 1 for older girls and women.

Information may be obtained by writing or telephoning Mrs. Stenzhorn at the Girls' Friendly Society office at St. Paul's Cathedral, 4800 Woodward Ave., Detroit 1, Mich., TE 1-5053.

There's a wonderful camp program including swimming, boating, tennis, croquet, water sports, outdoor fireplace, and handicraft. There are house mothers and counselors, and delicious home-cooked meals.

Miss Myrtle Armstrong is director of the camp located on Middlefield Road just north of West Long Lake Road, about five miles from Pontiac.

Girls' Friendly Society is sponsored by the Episcopal Church but is non-sectarian in membership. One of its services is the maintenance of non-profit vacation houses for happy holidays at moderate cost.

SURVEY REVEALS VALUE AND YIELD OF COMMON STOCK

Once considered on a par with gambling, the purchase of common stocks has "become an integral part of our economic life," a University of Michigan Business Study on "Common Stock Values and Yields" reveals.

Written by Wilford J. Elteman, U-M professor of finance, and Frank P. Smith, director of the U-M Bureau of Business Research, the study was published by the bureau.

Main topic of the text is a study of common stocks as long-term investments, with particular emphasis placed on yields. From their findings, the authors predict that "if our economy continues to grow and expand, as we believe it will, common stocks may be expected to continue the upward trend they have followed for 50 or more years."

They point out that common stock investment was once considered on a par with gambling, but has now become so respectable that it is hard to remember how recently this change of opinion took place.
