It's Our Opinion

This Friday . . .

September 4, is the final registration day for the special Farmington Township Hunting Ban election.

We should be able to stop right here; but unfortunately we can't. It seems to require more than a mere sentence of fact to arouse citizens to action. The announcement of a registration deadline and a forthcoming local election of such direct concern to everyone should cause waiting lines at the township office without another word said. However, this is not generally the case.

In new-found democracies a brief announcement is all that is needed to bring citizens flocking to the polls. This has been clearly illustrated in many countries of western Europe in the past few years. Voting records of 85% to 95% have gone into the books in these new republics. Maybe the word "new" is the answer . . . maybe the novelty is the attraction. However, we are inclined to believe that it is determination on the part of the citizens to protect something which they have had to win back the hard way.

Every time we cast a ballot, whether it be a national, state or local election, we lessen the chance of losing one of our most cherished possessions. The coming election on the proposed hunting ban in Farmington Township is of vital importance to every citizen. It is democracy right in our own front yard. The percentage of vote will reflect just how interested the citizens of Farmington Township are in their home community.

So prove to your friends and neighbors that you care and at the same time strengthen your cause as an American . . . register before 8:00 p.m. Friday and vote on Monday, October 5!

The Current Drive . . .

for more strict enforcement of traffic laws is getting greater and greater emphasis throughout the State of Michigan.

Every week new stories are being published outlining courses of action being taken by cities, villages, townships and counties to crack down on traffic violators. Making our streets and highways safer for everyone is getting top priority by safety officials, police, judges and newspapers.

In recent weeks the City Council has passed several amendments to the traffic ordinance designed to stimulate greater law enforcement. In addition, they have taken steps to increase patrolling on the residential streets of the city. Similar action is being taken by other municipalities. The Enterprise last week advocated the hiring of an additional police officer in the township so that greater protection could be realized.

Some citizens may have the impression that these steps are being taken merely to increase revenues to municipalities. They haven't read the traffic survey report made recently in the city by the State Highway Department and the State Police which showed that 70% to 80% of the drivers were violating the traffic laws. They haven't read the newspapers day after day recounting the appalling toll of death and injury on our streets and highways. They haven't visualized themselves in the place of these victims. They haven't thought of the pain and heartaches that they might be experiencing instead of the other fellow.

Instead of grumbling and arguing over a traffic ticket, we ought to be thankful, for it might well be a reprieve from death or injury. If we are to reduce the terrible toll on our streets and highways, we must not only remove undesirable drivers from the road, but we must impress on everyone that cars are killing and injuring citizens every day in the week . . . and that citizen can be you!

What'll Be Next . . .

on the federal tax sheet? The government doesn't know yet, but apparently they're going to come up with something. If it will help . . . there is no tax on breathing yet!

The reduction in government expenses, the increase in departmental efficiency, the progress toward easing the national debt has been more than encouraging. Even the efforts to maintain present sources of revenue temporarily in order to cover existing obligations has made sense.

But the next step being proposed by the government doesn't make sense, no matter how you slice it. We need new taxes like a dog needs fleas. It was our impression that the voters made that point quite clear last November!

In the Limelight

Do you think politics is dirty? What makes you think the way you do about matters of public importance?

Why do you have the opinions you have about your schools, state government, conservation, foreign aid? In short, why do you vote the way you do? What influences your actions in your home town, your union, your trade association? Where do you get the information that makes you act the way you do -- and do you react the way you do because you believe or disbelieve the information you get?

Answers to questions like these are being sought in a study of public information. It's sponsored by the Michigan Press Association, the Michigan School Administrators Association and Michigan State College. The project is being financed by a grant from Kellogg Foundation funds.

One of the most significant studies in communications ever conducted in the United States, is the description given the project by a world famous educator. Because of the size of the problem, it was decided to consider only one phase at the beginning. Because of the professional stature of school administrators and their natural connection with informing the public, it was decided to set up an experimental study of the relationship between the people and the knowledge they have about their school system.

St. Johns was selected as the site for the first investigation. Tests are now being made. When a method is developed there, studies will be carried out in many other communities.

You and your attitudes have a good chance of being probed by one of these surveys since it is expected to cover a three-year period.

When methods are uncovered to improve the knowledge people have about schools, it is expected, can be applied to other fields of public interest.

Sniping at educators has been carried on for years by newspaper editors who charge that school people hold "closed corporation" meetings and adopt other methods to prevent the public from knowing what is going on in the school system.

Educators, on the other hand, have directed some blows at editors, too. For years they have claimed that newspapers over-emphasize sensationalism in the news which schools become involved; that they often overlook the solid worthwhile developments.

The "enemy" camps, however, hold two friends. They were OT to Haisley, then head of the School (Continued on Page Three)

Sociology students in American high schools using a textbook entitled "The American Way of Life" and that our present form of Constitutional government is "a combination of lottery and famine" which will not be "true democracy" until security and plenty "are given to the masses." This statement is but one example of the mass of opinionated, slanted information being given to millions of sociology students in high schools and colleges throughout the nation, according to Dr. A. H. Hobbs, professor of sociology at the University of Pennsylvania.

He makes the statement after an exhaustive study of 83 widely used sociology textbooks. His findings and analysis are contained in his book "The Claims of Sociology: A Critique of Textbooks" (The Stackpole Company, Harrisburg, Pa.). A series of columns is being devoted to the book, for the content of sociological teachings in our educational institutions should be of vital interest to every American citizen.

We cannot expect to preserve our representative form of government, the private enterprise economic system and the other basic institutions in the American way of life if succeeding generations of our youth get the type of teachings which Professor Hobbs claims to have found in a considerable portion of textbook sociology, the most rapidly growing field of study in American education.

While none of the authors specifically advocates abandonment of democratic (republican) government and substitution of some other existing form, Professor Hobbs reports, "definite leaning in the direction of a government-controlled socialized economy, or 'collectivistic' forms and processes, is either expressed or implied in a majority of the texts." He noted also that while overworking and misusing the word "democracy," only a few of the texts "make a serious attempt to present an objective description of the nature, functions, and goals of (our present) government."

Of the 83 texts examined, in three of the most popular sociology courses, 35 were written for courses in "Social Problems." Although six describe governmental goals in terms which limit the functions of government to a more-or-less traditional framework, Dr. Hobbs reports that "25 of the 35 texts include statements which indicate that government should play an active role in providing individuals with ends as well as means."

"Thus," he observes, "the predominant emphasis places responsibility upon governmental activities which will provide individuals with happiness, developed personalities, economic welfare and security; which will decrease or remove class distinctions, or which will make life a 'cooperative' quest toward 'rational' ideals. Such emphasis takes the burden of active responsibility away from the individuals and places it upon the government."

Dr. Hobbs found that some of the 83 textbooks give an objective appraisal of traditional American institutions, but that most of them, by use of "persistent persuasion," "selective evidence," and other "devious and subtle techniques," foster the viewpoint: (1) that religion should discontinue teaching supernaturalism, or the existence of God, and concentrate on crusades.

Looking Back Through The Enterprise Files

Green Again
Twenty-five years ago (September 6, 1928)

Farmington again elected Governor Fred W. Green a big margin at the primary election Tuesday, giving the Governor a majority of more than 3 to 1 over his opponent. The total for city and township was: Green, 403; Welsh, 128.

Probably the oldest voter in this section at the primary Tuesday was Mrs. Eliza Utley, 83, of Farmington Township. Mrs. Utley, an old resident, voted at Precinct No. 1, the Dodd School. Isaac Bond, the road-commissioner, took her in his car to vote. "I believe it is the duty of every citizen to vote," said Mrs. Utley, who passed her 83rd milestone on May 5.

Objections
Vigorous and determined opposition to the extension of the Ten Mile Road into Farmington, via the McGee Hill, and paving of Silvassee west to Grand River was voiced by a number of taxpayers of the city at the hearing Saturday morning. A petition bearing 200 signatures was filed with the Oakland County Road Commission. No decision was reached, the Commission taking the matter under advisement.

TEN YEARS AGO (September 2, 1948)
Parade
The Labor Day parade this year was led by Maurice Graham and his horse "Big O' Honey". The parade group formed at 5:00 p.m. at the high school. Entries in the horse show, the high school band, branches of the Civilian Defense and all patriotic organizations participated. The pet and doll parade also took part.

Bond Drive
The Third War Bond Drive will be launched in the Farmington community on September 8. This Bond Drive is the greatest undertaking of its type and is going to require everyone's help if it is to be a success. Joseph Himmelsbach, chairman of Bond and Stamp sales for Farmington, has announced that the Farmington Dairy will be an agency for the sale of Bonds and Stamps.

Contributors
Merchants and professional men of Farmington and community have been most generous with their contributions to the American Legion to insure the success of Gala Days.

FIVE YEARS AGO (September 2, 1948)
Hostess
Miss Margaret Leach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Leach of 23309 Oakland Street, recently arrived in Japan aboard the USAF Alexander. She is employed by Eighth Army Special Services and is assigned to the Gamagori Leave Hotel. As an Army hostess, it will be the responsibility of Miss Leach to plan a well-rounded recreation program for men on leave at the hotel.

Show
The Farmington High School gym was a veritable Garden of Paradise last Saturday for the annual Farmington Flower Show sponsored by the Garden Club. Most coveted of the awards at the show were the tricolor awards which were won by Miss Mary Durgan, Mrs. Walter Hickey and Mrs. Guy Durgan.

More Law
Improved police protection and service to residents of Farmington will be provided on and after September 1, according to Police Chief Joseph DeVriendt. The new officer added to the force is Frederick Law, who began his duties this week.
