New Type Report Card Greet's Cville Students

Wednesday, October 28, the parents of students attending Clarenceville High School were greeted by a new type of report card. Academics, citizenship and effort are combined to show either inferior or superior work.

Listed on the side of the card are items indicating either the improvements or lack of improvement of a student. Such items as "absence interferes with work," shows decline, fails to respect school regulations," or, on the other hand, "work shows improvement, makes good effort, courteous and considerate of others" may be checked. On the back of this card there is room for comments by parents.

Senior Highlights

Who's that strutting around twirling her baton? Why, you mean you don't know? Well, just for the record's sake, her name is Sally Raft Satterfield. Sally, as she is commonly called, has long brown hair, brown eyes, and stands 5' 3 1/2" tall. She's been a Clarenceville majorette since the ninth grade. You are sure just about everyone has seen her out on the field with the band doing all those fancy twirls, and strutting about while the crowd cheers on. Sally was born in Tennessee on December 29, 1934. She moved to Clarenceville when she was five years old.

As for her favorite crafter, Juliet Laitone can't be beat. Ray Anthony rates number one on her list for favorite bands. Her pet peeve is boys. Now that's pretty confusing, isn't it?

Sally just loves every sport, but her favorite is bowling, which is also her hobby. She simply drools over chess, which is her favorite game. As for her best pals, she likes almost everyone. She can be seen practically every afternoon with ten or fifteen senior girls. Yep, Sally likes everyone. When our Senior High-Lite graduates, she wants to be a computer operator.

This week's blond haired, blue eyed senior is a zany character whom everyone knows and likes. (Well, at least I like him pretty much.)

As I approached him, he was sitting in study hall reading one of his mechanics books. To start with, he is all of six feet from the ground, has deep blue eyes, and his favorite color is yellow, as you can tell by his yellow corduroy shirt and his loud yellow argyle.

He works almost every night at Grand River Drive in and when our Senior High-Lite graduates, he'll find him hunting up dragons with his special dragon net, or at a basketball game. (That's his favorite sport.)

When it comes to pet peeves, he said: "I just hate girls who peroxidized hair! It makes me so furious I want to dance and I hate to dance!" What a character! However, and he also enjoys his boy friends, Don Nelson, when he sings. He also said that Draguet is his favorite platter, but there is only one thing wrong with it, and that is that the Hippopars

Last week voices of students could be heard almost everywhere inquiring, "Are you coming to the Homecoming Friday?" That was the main topic of discussion in the corridors of Clarenceville High School.

But did you ever stop to realize the true purpose of Homecoming? What does it mean to you? Pretty girls on a float, a band playing, red and gray streamers? Even though to some people it means just another football game, a chance for everyone to really have a good time, the main purpose is to welcome back our alumni.

Every year at this time other high schools and colleges such as Michigan State, Central Normal, Wayne and University of Michigan also have a Homecoming. It is more or less a tradition. Years ago they celebrated it with a tea or some other kind of gathering, but now a dance is usually held as the main celebration of the occasion.

Trojan Cheerleaders Give Gridders Good Send-Off

Last Friday, October 23, a party was held just before the football game with Holly. The cheerleaders put on a short skit and gave some cheers. Just before the students were dismissed for the game, Mr. Lantz came in from the field and spoke a few encouraging words.

The students who attended the game then formed two lines right outside of the field house, then, as the players came out and ran between the lines, the students cheered them on the field.

During the entire game, not once did the crowd give up cheering, even when Holly was threatening for a touchdown.

The cheerleaders had themselves spread out along the field so as to lead not only those people in the bleachers, but also those who were standing.

Feature Teacher

I just happened to be going into the music room looking for a lost note when I found our new music teacher, Miss Cecelia McKee. I'll bet you never knew a chorus could be so interesting.

Miss McKee was born on October 27, in Jackson, Michigan. She has brown hair, blue eyes and is 5' 9" tall. After attending St. Mary's High School in Lansing she obtained a Bachelor Degree in music at Michigan State College.

This describes her to a "T" with the exception that she wears a diamond on her left hand which casually announces she is to be married the day after Christmas. Besides conducting the high school chorus, Miss McKee has a junior high chorus and teaches ninth grade English. Quite a busy girl, I'd say. After that, I saw no sense in asking her what she does in her spare time or as a hobby, but I did and what an amazing past time she has for a teacher. She corrects papers. At times she says she manages to get down to her jewelry class, which she enjoys very much.

Checking on her a bit further, we find Miss McKee's most likeable entertainment is dancing to the music of Ray Anthony. Otherwise she likes to listen to Nat King Cole or a favorite classical album of hers, "Nutcracker Suite" by Tchaikowsky. When not listening to music or dancing she does what I suppose everyone enjoys doing. She eats -- and loves it, especially turkey, lamb and roast beef.

Well, this about ends our little chat with Miss McKee but before we go I'll send a little clue over your way. Don't chew gum near her... she hates it.
